FOR BEST ESSAY ON ARBITRATION BY STUDENT

Won by L. B. Bobbitt, Sophomore in John Hopkins University.

FIFTH SESSION OF LAKE MOHONK

Conference on Arbitration Was Given Over to Educators.

Platform Urges Negotiation
of General Treaty of Nations.

Lake Mohonk, N. Y., May 21.—This morning's session of the Lake Mohonk Conference on International Arbitration was devoted to educators.

Dr. Andrew D. White, long president of Cornell University, and chairman of the American delegation to the first Hague conference, presented a committee report showing that within four years more than 275 American colleges and universities had come to co-operate with the Mohonk Conference by providing occasions to bring before their student bodies the principal facts of the international peace movement by means of lectures, addresses, student programs, debates, oratorical contests and special exercises.

Dr. White pointed out that the more active institutions included many of the large universities, and submitted a list including Brown University, the College of the City of New York, George Washington University, Johns Hopkins University, Stanford University, Northwestern University, the State University of Indiana, Iowa, Kentucky, North Dakota, Ohio, Syracuse University, the University of California, Chicago, Cincinnati, Colorado, Georgia, Idaho, Kansas, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Princeton, Rochester, Southern California, Utah, Vermont, Washington, West Virginia and Wyoming; Vassar College, Wellesley College and Western Reserve University.

An event which excited much interest among the members was the presentation of the "Pugsley Prize," offered a year ago in the name of the conference for the best essay on international arbitration by a student of an American college or university. Chester DeWitt Pugsley, the donor of the prize and a student of Harvard University, made the presentation and referred to the great importance of interesting college students in the subject. He also expressed his gratification at the large number of essays submitted. L. B. Bobbitt, who won the prize, responded briefly. Mr. Bobbitt is a sophomore in Johns Hopkins University.

In the next academic year Mr. Pugsley has offered to provide a similar prize of $100, to be offered in the same way.

Dean Kinrich, of Columbia, chairman of the business committee in presenting the platform declared that the adoption of the nations and of international politics today justified a more advanced position than that taken by last year's conference, especially of limitation of armaments and that therefore there was no inconsistency in the attitude of the conference.

William I. Buchanan, of Buffalo, and Judge S. E. Baldwin, of New Haven, endorsed the motion for adoption of the platform and commended it for what is contained as well as for what it does not contain.

The platform was then adopted unanimously and without dissent or amendment.

The fifteenth annual Lake Mohonk conference on international arbitration, meeting on the tenth anniversary of the opening of the first Hague conference, reviews with profound satisfaction, the signal advance of the cause of international justice during the past decade, a progress unexampled in any previous period of history. The memorable achievements of this period are at once an inspiration and an imperative call to renewed effort.

We urge upon our government, which has long so conspicuously and so honorably identified with the progressive policies of the Hague, prompt action toward perfecting the important measures there inaugurated and the complete development of them in the future. We especially praise its early initiative in the establishment of the international court of arbitration.

We further urge the negotiations of a general treaty of arbitration between all nations, and look forward with increasing hope to the day when treaties of arbitration shall provide for the regular diplomatic negotiation of the clear logic of the Hague conference prescribes the limitation and gradual reduction of the machinery of war by the nations parties to the conventions, corresponding to the development of the instrumentalities of the law and justice for the settlement of international difficulties. The great armaments of the nations, whose intolerable burdens prompted the call of the first Hague conference, have during the decade increased so portentously as to have now become, as recently declared by the British foreign secretary, a satire upon civilization. They fill the world with apprehension and alarm; they create an atmosphere unfavorable to the system of arbitration and their drain upon the resources of the peoples has become so exhausting as to menace all national treasures and disastrously check the social reforms and advances which the interests of humanity demand. It is the opinion of this conference that the time has arrived for carrying into effect the strongly expressed desire of the two peace conferences at the Hague that the governments "examine the possibility of an agreement as to the limitation of armed forces by land and sea, and of war budgets," and address themselves to the serious study of this pressing question. Accordingly we ask our government to consider whether the peculiar position which it occupies among the nations does not afford it a special opportunity to lead the way toward making these weighty declarations basis of public and concerted action.

SECRET SERVICE MEN GET BUSY.

Zanesville, O., May 21.—Safe crackers made a raid on the college town of New Concord some time last night and relieved the post office there of $1700 in money and stamps. C. M. Trace, postmaster, notified the department at Washington this morning and received word that secret service men are already on the way here. The robbers entered the building through a back window and wrecked the safe with a blast of dynamite. The explosion was heard by but one man in New Concord, and he did not attach any particular significance to it. Of the amount stolen $300 was in cash.

Postmaster Trace took charge of the office May 1, which accounts for the large number of stamps he had on hand.

ABDUL HAMID GIVES UP COIN.

Constantinople, May 21.—A local newspaper is authority for the statement that Abdul Hamid, the deposed sultan, has transferred bank deposits amounting to something over $,900,000 to the government.

BIG STEAMER FREED HERSELF.

St. Johns, May 21.—The Allard blue steamer Mongolian today freed herself from the ice pack just off the coast of this port.

The Mongolian, after releasing herself from the ice pack, did not make any attempt to enter St. Johns harbor, ice conditions making such a course impracticable. At 8 a. m. she was making slow progress toward the south in the heavy drift.

It was believed on shore that the steamer was proceeding toward Mayville, 18 miles south of St. Johns, where there was a possibility of her making a harbor.

CONY ISLAND

Amusement Owners Will Defy Mayor McCallan.

New York, May 21.—The mayor of New York, John McCallan, which prohibits any kind of amusement on Sunday, will be defied by the principal owners of amusement places at Coney Island, according to statements issued by them. An organization by them is in the course of formation, and it was understood that the courts would be asked for injunctions restraining the mayor and the police from interfering with the Sunday shows at Coney Island.

The men who have many millions of dollars invested there declared that they are prepared to carry the matter to the highest court.

WHO KNOW WHICH OF THEM IS RIGHT?

Washington, May 21.—The finance committee's amendment fixing a rate of 35 and 65 cents per hundred feet on different grade of electric carbon was adopted by the senate by a vote of 43 to 35.

When the carbon item was reached Senator La Follette declared that the estimate of the committee on finance was erroneous. Speaking of the provision fixing a duty of 35 cents on a hundred feet of carbon when made from petroleum coke and 65 cents per 100 feet when composed chiefly of lamp black or retort carbon, he said that it had been claimed that these figures were less than those of the Dingley law, which were 30 cents per 100 carbons.

SEEK JOINING OF TWO CHURCHES.

Canton, O., May 21.—Aside from the discussion of reports the United Brethren conference today was addressed by ex-Governor Frank Hanley of Indiana, who was introduced by the presiding bishop as "The man who ought to be president of the United States."

Fraternal greetings were sent by the conference to the Presbyterian general assembly at Denver.

Senator Matt Edmunds of Salina, Kas., and Dr. C. R. Brane, of Pennsylvania, are delegates sent to Huntington, Ind., to ask the Radical United Brethren to unite with the United Brethren church.

And for Two Hours Its Sixty-Seven Thousand Men Were Idle

DURING FUNERAL OF HENRY ROGERS.

Attendance Was Limited to Personal and Business Associates.

Owing to Illness of His Wife Rockefeller Was Not Present.

New York, May 21.—The funeral of Henry H. Rogers, president of the Amalgamated Copper Company, and active head of the Standard Oil Company, today brought together many men prominent in the business and financial districts of this city.

Although attendance at the services in the Church of the Messiah at 10 a. m., was limited to intimate business associates and personal friends, these included so many of the leaders of the New York business and financial world that their absence from their usual activities had a notable effect upon the business of the financial district.

Throughout the country wherever the Standard Oil Company has a station or a branch, there was a pause during the hours of the funeral to mark the passing of the first vice president of the company and one of the men who had helped materially to make it a great organization.

Orders had been issued last night that all operations of the company should cease between 10 and 12 o'clock and these applied to every one of the 67,000 employees—a condition which had not existed in the giant corporation since its foundation, more than thirty-five years ago.

John D. Rockefeller could not attend the funeral as he was in Hot Springs, Va., with Mrs. Rockefeller, who is convalescing from a serious illness and her condition would not permit him to leave her. He sent, however, a long telegram to Mrs. Rogers, expressing his grief.

The funeral cortege left the Rogers home at No. 3, east 75th street, at 8:30 a. m., and proceeded to the Church of the Messiah, on 34th street, where the Rev. Dr. Robert Collier, pastor emeritus, friend of the Rogers family, conducted the funeral service according to the Unitarian form.

During the services a quartet from the Mendelssohn Glee club, sang several selections including the hymns of "Lead Kindly Light," "Nearer My God to Thee," and "Abide With Me."

On the list of pall bearers were the names of William Rockefeller, John D. Archibald, E. T. Bedford and James A. Moffett, of the Standard Oil Company; Samuel L. Clemens, (Mark Twain); E. H. Harriman, Elbert H. Gary, Melville E. Stone, James M. Beck, John D. Ryan, Chas. P. Peabody, Geo. W. Perkins, Dr. C. C. Rice, Raymond Du Pu, General James Jourdan and Col. A. G. Payne.

The Lotus club, of which Mr. Rogers was a member, sent a number of its members to represent it at the services, and a special delegation from the Norfolk Board of Trade, who were interested with Mr. Rogers in the building of his Virginia railroad, came to attend the funeral.

Following the services at the Church of the Messiah, the body was taken to the Grand Central station and placed on board a special train which left for Fair Haven, Mass., at 11:15.

Chicago, May 21.—Between 9 and 10 o'clock this forenoon while the funeral of H. H. Rogers was being held at New York, the vast machinery of the Standard Oil Company, in this city, and at Whiting, Ind., ceased to move. Hundreds of employees ceased to work for the hour.

Tank wagons, acting under instructions, promptly at 9 o'clock, halted wherever they happened to be and did not move until the hour had passed.

Fair Haven, Mass., May 21.—Fair Haven awaited with buildings draped with crepe and flags at half mast, the sad coming of the body of Henry H. Rogers, who died in New York Wednesday.

The school children of the town, accompanied by their teachers, will file through the church and then the residents of the town will be given an opportunity to gaze upon Mr. Rogers' face.

The funeral which will be attended only by relatives and friends, will be held in the church at 2:30 p. m. Rev. Dr. Robert Collier, of New York, will conduct the services, assisted by Rev. Frank L. Phalen, pastor of the Fair Haven Memorial church. The honorary pall bearers at the services here will be all Fair Haven and New Bedford friends of Mr. Rogers. The interment will be in the Greek Mausoleum at the River Side cemetery, in which rest the bodies of his mother and his daughter Millicent. As the cortege proceeds to the cemetery it will pass through a lane formed of school children.

EXCITING

Method Planned for Creating Mentality in the Nation.

New York, May 21.—After an all day investigation the police declared last night that young Albert Rosen, of Brooklyn, did not jump from the 22nd Street bridge, as he claimed to have done, and for which he was arrested and held by the court in $5000 bail, to keep the peace for six months.

Police Captain Coleman, whose detectives spent many hours on the case said last night that he has evidence that Rosen was in a motor boat under the bridge while persons threw a diamond from the roadway. Posing boats saw a figure drawn from the water onto a motor boat which Rosen had previously retained and when they came alongside they saw Rosen on deck, dripping wet. The police say the dummy which had made the 125 foot dive to the river was constructed in the launch's fire box.

MEMOIR OF CALVIN

Celebrated, This Being His Four Hundredth Anniversary.

BY PRESBYTERIANS IN CONVENTION.

Dr. Roberts Chosen Clerk
Has Served Twenty-Six Years.

Denver, May 21.—The general assembly of the Presbyterian church met at 9 o'clock this morning and before adjournment at noon the organization for the actual business of the church executive body was well under way.

Dr. William Henry Roberts, of Philadelphia, was elected stated clerk, a position he has held for 26 years, and Judge Chas. S. Holt, of Chicago, was appointed vice moderator.

The various voting districts submitted their nominee for the standing committee which will be organized before the day is over.

The 400th anniversary of the birth of John Calvin was celebrated this afternoon.

Aside from the regular assembly sessions the business activities of the day were taken up in the preparation of committee reports from presentation to the assembly.

One of the interesting reports submitted to the Presbyterian general assembly today was that of the special committee on marriage and divorce. The committee which asks permission further to consider this subject for report to the next assembly, calls attention to the alarming increase of the number of divorces granted, as shown by the government census. The government census, the report says, tells a story that surprises the Christian nation and shames the nation in regard to divorces.

The report continues: "Although it is a fact to be deplored that the scandal and sin and sorrow resulting from the laxity of law that makes divorce and speedy remarriage possible show sad and shameful continuance, and that efforts to resist and lessen these evils, that threaten the permanence and purity of the family life, the stability of the state and the life and power of the church seem unavailing, yet the united efforts of the churches of national and state officials and organizations, of the Bar Association of the United States and conspicuously the faithful and persistent work of the national divorce congress which invited the representative of the interchurch conference to confer with them, encourage us to believe that the movement has made great progress and to hope that reforms will be accomplished which will in time wipe out much of the dishonor and disgrace that makes Christian America conspicuous in permitting a laxity that makes our record our shame."

"There is a strong sentiment yet against the enactment of a national law regulating marriage and divorce, owing to the jealousy of states to preserve their rights. But the states should seek the closest possible uniformity and secure the least possible perplexity and the best result for the purity of our people and for the peace and prosperity of our Christian nation."

"We submit the following statistics: In 1887 the total number of divorces granted was 27,918 and in 1906, 72,062. The total number granted in twenty years was 945,625. Certainly the state's granted divorces are as follows:

Pennsylvania in 1887, 1,097 divorces, and in 1906, 3,027; New York in 1887, 1,042 divorces, and in 1906, 2,069; North Dakota in 1887, 57 divorces and in 1906, 320; Ohio in 1887, 2,003 divorces and in 1906, 4,781; Kentucky in 1887, 949 divorces and in 1906, 2,050; Illinois in 1887, 1,226 divorces and in 1906, 5,943; and Virginia in 1887, 305 divorces and in 1906, 1,074.

FARMERS RAISED PRICE TOO HIGH.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 21.—Residents of Catoosa county, Ga., declaring that the government rice land there is a menace to life and limb, are preparing a petition for injunction to prevent further practice by the Eleventh U. S. cavalry. A bill will be filed at Ringold, Ga., tomorrow. The government has need for the land there as an addition to Chickamauga Park, and a large sum has been appropriated for the land, but Georgia farmers placed the price out of reach.

BROTHER TOLD TO HIKE AWAY.

Willemstad, Curacao, May 21.—Celestino Castro, brother of the deposed president of Venezuela, was today served with a notice of his expulsion from the island of Curacao. This action was taken under the advice of the advocate general of the colony and it indicates that Celestino is no more welcome in the West Indies. In all events in Curacao, his brother would have been. Señor Castro must leave the island within six days.

Minor Riots and Number of Fires Followed Their Efforts.

Paris, May 21.—Following the vote of the builders and masons this afternoon favoring a return to work the federal committee of the General Federation of Labor decided officially to announce the end of the strike.

The members of the committee agreed that the present movement was hopeless, and in bitter words they attributed the failure to the leaders and the agitators, especially M. Guenard, secretary of the railroad employees, and M. Pataut.

Paris, May 21.—The strikers in Paris made several attempts today to invade the factories and buildings where the men had refused to quit work.

Minor riots and a number of fires resulted. According to the advice of their leaders, the strikers are beginning to destroy property. A number of telegraph poles were thrown down last night, and a valve in the subway under the Seine was unscrewed. Fortunately this was discovered and remedied, else the workmen entering the caisson would have been subjected to great danger.

The government today publishes reassuring statistics showing that out of the 2,000,000 workmen in France only 900,000 are unemployed, and that less than one-third of these belong to unions affiliated with the General Federation of Labor.

This land is part of 450,000 acres in the Big Horn basin which will be made available for agricultural purposes by the Shoshone project.

SPECKELS PUT ON THE DEFENSIVE.

San Francisco, May 21.—Returning to the attack upon the testimony of Randolph Speckels, millionaire banker of the graft prosecution, the defense in the bribery trial of Patrick Calhoun, president of the United Railways, made reference to the arrangements between Assistant District Attorney Francis J. Heney and the department of justice at Washington.

Speckels, under cross-examination, said he was not aware that Heney had been paid large sums by the federal government since he announced the graft trials. Later the witness explained that a check for $1,194 given to Heney simply covered the prosecutor's office expenses for March and April. Speckels denied paying Heney's household expenses.

McCoy is only held as a witness. All concerned are colored.

WILL CONTINUE TO TEACH SCHOOL.

Dayton, O., May 21.—Although she is the only sister of two famous brothers who are reputed to be making fortunes in selling rights for the use of their aeroplane, Miss Katherine Wright will not give up the task of teaching school. She was given a leave of absence from her duties as teacher in the high school at the beginning of the year so she could visit her brother in France. SMALL LOAVES, FIFTEEN CENTS.

New York, May 21.—The bread famine on the east side caused by the strike of union bakers, has been only partially relieved by the demands for bread made in Brooklyn, the Bronx, and other sections. Small loaves of bread were sold for 10 and 15 cents last night. Bakers in other sections of the city unaffected by the strike sent their wagons loaded with bread into the east side and profited by the high prices.

HEALTH

Commissioner of Chicago Slaps Doctors Hard.

Chicago, May 21.—That the place for the "old school doctor" who at one time was physician, adviser, friend and confessor to his patients has been taken by the trained nurse in the modernized profession of medicine was the contention made by Dr. William A. Evans, health commissioner of Chicago, in an address before the graduation class of nurses in the Sherman Hospital at Elgin, Ills.

"The modern physician is an evolution of the old time doctor," said Dr. Evans, "he has lost a sympathetic element of the old time doctor and the nurse has taken his place."

STOCK OF GOLD

HAS INCREASED ONE HALF IN THE PAST DECADE.The Stock of Gold Money
Has Increased More Than That.SEVENTY-FIVE IS
THE PER CENTUMOf Increase Estimated on the Supply of Yellow Money Circulated.United States Occupies Second Place as a Gold Producer.

The world's stock of gold has increased about one-half in the last decade, and doubled in the last quarter of a century. The stock of gold money has meantime grown in even greater proportions, being practically 75 per cent more than a decade ago. This is a summarization of a series of tables which will appear in the Statistical Abstract of the United States, about to be issued by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Commerce and Labor. These tables show the gold production of the world since the discovery of America, and the amount of gold money in the world, country by country. The gold production from the discovery of America to the present time aggregates 13 billion dollars, speaking in round terms; and the amount of gold now in existence is estimated by experts, still speaking in round terms, at 11 billion dollars; value, while the value of the gold coin in all the countries of the world for which statistics are available now aggregates 7 billion dollars.

A careful study of these tables shows a very rapid increase in gold production in recent years. Prior to the year 1700 the world's gold production averaged about 5 million dollars a year; from 1700 to 1750 it averaged about 10 million dollars a year; from 1750 to 1850 it averaged about 12 million dollars a year. With the discovery of gold in the United States in 1849, and a little later in Australia, the world's production of gold increased tenfold, the annual output of gold mines ranging from 1850 to 1890. In 1893 the production passed the 150-million line; in 1894 it was 181 millions; and in 1895, 202 millions. From that time onward the growth was still more rapid, crossing the 300-million line in 1896, and exceeding 400 millions in 1897, 410 millions in 1898, and 427 millions in 1899. As a result of this rapid growth in production in recent years the gold output of the world's mines during the 10 years ending with 1908 aggregated, according to the figures in question, 3,400 million dollars; while the product of the immediately preceding 15 years aggregated 2,400 millions; making a total of nearly 6 billion dollars' worth of gold produced in the last 25 years, out of a total production of 13 billions since the discovery of America.

Meanwhile, although gold is more carefully conserved than any other article of man's production, some portions of the 13 billions have disappeared; and the best estimates put the total world's supply of this metal at the present time at about 11 billion dollars, of which one-third, still speaking in round terms, is the product of the last 25 years, one-half the product of the last 25 years, and four-fifths the product of the last 25 years.

About two-thirds of this world's stock of gold exists in the form of coin, or bullion held for coining purposes. One of the tables shows, under the title of "Approximate Stocks of Money in the Principal Countries of the World," the total stock of gold in circulation and in banks as little more than 7 billion dollars, or practically two-thirds of the 11 billion dollars' worth of gold estimated as now existing in the world. Of this 7 billions of gold money in the various countries, about 3 billions is reported as in circulation, and about 4 billions as in banks and public treasuries. Considering its distribution by countries, the United States has a greater supply of gold money than any other country, the figures being, according to this table: United States, 1,612 millions; Germany, 1,044 millions; France, 925 millions; Russia, 817 millions; United Kingdom, 565 millions; Austria-Hungary, 503 millions; Italy, 258 millions; Australia, 140 millions; Egypt, 140 millions; Argentina, 140 millions; Turkey, 132 millions; India, 113 millions; Japan, 90 millions; Canada, 66 millions; and Brazil, 51 millions.

The stock of gold money in the United States (including bullion) has, according to these figures, increased at about the same rate as the world's supply, the total quantity of gold money reported in the United States a decade ago (November, 1898) being 925 millions, against 1,612 millions at the present time, the increase during the decade having thus been about 75 per cent, while the increase in the world's stock of gold money during that time was, as already shown, also about 75 per cent.

The Bear Doesn't Like these Joy Trips.

of gold in the United States since 1792, the earliest record available, is a little over 3 billion dollars in value, or nearly one-fourth of the total of 13 billion dollars given as the world's product since 1492. During the last 10 years the production in the United States has aggregated between 8 and 9 hundred million dollars, or about one-fourth of the total world product of about 3 1/2 billions during that period. The United States occupies second place in the list of the world's gold producers—South Africa standing first, with a little over 150 millions; the United States slightly less than 100 millions; Australasia about 80 millions; Russia about 25 millions; and Mexico a little less than 20 millions.

Of the world's stock of money, as shown by one of the tables from which the above statements are drawn, 7 billion dollars is gold, 8 1/2 billions silver, and 4 1-3 billions uncovered paper. Ten years ago the figures were—gold, 4 1/2 billions; silver, 4 billions; paper, 2 1-3 billions; the amount of gold money having thus increased over 50 per cent, paper about 80 per cent, while silver declined about 10 per cent.

As to what use is being made of that portion of the world's gold not utilized as currency or as a basis for currency, the Director of the Mint estimates the world's consumption of gold in the arts and industries in 1907 at 155 million dollars.

The tables of gold production show that the coming value of silver produced from the mines of the world since 1492 is practically equal to that of the gold produced in that period—13 billion dollars. The annual production of silver continues to grow slowly and steadily increase as to quantity and coining value, the product in 1907 being 185 million ounces against 160 millions in 1897, and the coining value in 1907 being 239 million dollars against 207 millions in 1897. Stated in commercial values, however, the figures are materially less, the commercial value of the silver produced in 1897 being 122 million dollars, and that in 1897, 96 millions.

LET US NOT FORGET.

Rules for remembering which go beyond the obvious advantages comprised in distinctness of the original impression and observing the connection between related ideas are not of much practical value. Memorization may easily be made ridiculous. It is a German wit who makes a professor remark, "Would you believe it, my dear colleague, I actually do not know the ages of my children?" To which the other makes answer, "Such a thing could never happen with me. I was born 2300 years after the death of Tiberius; our son Leo 2000 years after the promulgation of the Licinian laws by Tiberius Sempronius Gracchus, and our Auanda 1500 years after the commencement of the great migration. Very simple, is it not?"

It is the common experience that memory is a merry trickster, treacherous and wanton, refusing to yield up the things we have stored in our minds with great care, yet lavish in affording us the most vivid images of trivial incidents in our lives. The late Thomas Bailey Aldrich set this forth with much meretricious grace:

My mind lets go a thousand things,
Like dates of wars and deaths of kings,
And yet recalls the very hour—
'Twas noon by yonder village tower,
And on the last blue moon in May—
The wind came briskly up the way,
Crisping the brook beside the road;
Then, pausing here, not down its lead
Of pine-needles, and shook listlessly
Two petals from that wild-rose tree.

ALDRICH AND AN HONEST TARIFF.

There is in Washington a Republican president, a republican majority in the senate, a republican majority in the house of representatives. Are they to unite in providing a modern instance of the "truth of the ancient maxim that 'whom the gods would destroy they first make mad'?" Aldrich wins the adoption of a certain tariff schedule framed to serve no purpose save to provide bigger profits than its present 20 per cent dividends for Guggenheim's lead trust. Do not he and Cannon and their allies see that their seeming success is due only to a survival of an old subservience with which the country has lost patience?

Do they think that the protests from republican senators are merely the outbursts of impulsive young demagogues seeking notoriety and local applause? Do they think that Burkett was speaking only to soothe Nebraska when he said, "The country is watching this bill. Senators may think the people are not watching it, but you cannot fool them on these schedules."

If so, it would be well for those once-trusted and still arrogantly powerful senatorial spokesmen to merely "indignant comment of America," in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago—in every city East and West—newspapers loyal now, as always, to the principles of real republicanism and the doctrine of protection, and for that very reason shamed by the fact of deserved disaster within the next four years which they foresee if the Aldrich program of trickery, treachery and deceit is carried out.

Does Aldrich think that Clapp, of Minnesota, spoke for himself or for one state or one group of politicians when he made a memorable five-minute speech last Friday? Cannot they understand that he simply expressed the feeling of the millions of Americans who elected Taft last November, when he said:

It would be a ridiculous performance for us to come here and reaffirm the Dingley law. . . . What we are now doing is a mere farce, mere boy's play. If I thought there was not to be a revision downward, I would pack my grip and go home for my oath of office as a senator does not require that I should stay here and participate in a farce.

"The people, our platform, our speeches and the speeches of President Taft contained no suggestion of a revision upward, and no sophistry can make it appear otherwise. This demand comes from the people who are not the direct beneficiaries of this system. The burden lies upon the prosperous industries to show that they need this protection. The greatest enemy of protection is the man who would abuse the policy because he has the power to do so. The best friends of the policy are those who want a revision downward."

It may be in your power to act contrary to the wishes of the people, but so sure as you do that, two years from now this tariff will be revised, not by the friends of protection, but by the enemies of protection."

Aldrich, pilloried by Dingley, exposed as ignorant in all matters in which he has posed as an expert authority, proved incapable of defense against the accusations—all the more cutting because of their calmness—that he has been guilty of bad faith, of attempting to deceive the senate and the public, and of representing special interests against the welfare of the American people; sputtering back personalities in effeminate anger, presented on the floor of the senate the most pitiable spectacle ever furnished in our national history by the parliamentary leader of a national party.

THE END OF THE
JORDAN WATER SCHEME.

The voters of the country elected a congress to fulfill the pledge of the Chicago platform and make realities of the declared principles of the party and the president. The order was peremptory—a wise preservation of the protection doctrine by a skilled, courageous and thorough modernization of the tariff schedules, and not, as the New York Tribune well describes the Aldrich hodge-podge, "a mere rewriting of the Dingley schedules, duties being lowered a shade here and advanced a shade there, the net result being the re-enactment of a law which has stood on the statute book for twelve years and was drawn to fit conditions in trade and industry which have radically changed in the interval."—Philadelphia North American.

THE END OF THE
JORDAN WATER SCHEME.

One of the New York papers has a beautiful story about the great scheme of a Kentucky colonel to bottle the waters of the Jordan and sell it at retail for baptismal use in the United States. In daring of imagination and serene optimism it deserves to take rank with the legendary exploits of Colonel Mulberry Sellers—"four hundred millions of people in China, all with weak eyes, eye water at $1 a bottle, there's millions in it."

This particular colonel, one Cliff Nadaud, who was on Governor Beckham's staff and once ran for congress, formed the happy conceit of taking water from the Jordan river, putting it into bottles the shape of a cross and selling them in the United States to devout parents to use at the baptism of their children. He had the bottles made at great expense, and with infinite trouble obtained the water. It was necessary to get the aid of the state department at Washington and obtain the consent of Abdul Hamid. Then when permission had been secured and all obstructions of oriental red tape had been overcome, it was a stupendous undertaking to make casks to hold the water, to boil it in caldrons by the Jordan's banks, to transport it in caravans across the mountains of Judea to the Mediterranean Sea, to have the original packages sealed by Turkish authorities to attest their genuineness, and to get it safely across the Atlantic and stored in a New York city warehouse.

All this, together with the cross-shaped bottles, Colonel Nadaud accomplished, and then the bottom fell out of the International River Jordan company, which consisted of the colonel, for nobody seemed to care for the genuine Jordan water. Consequently the other day they carried out of the warehouse on north Moore street ten enormous casks containing 3,000 gallons of water and emptied it into the curb, where it stole down to the harbor through the Greenwich street sewer, to mingle with the Hudson and the Hackensack and the blue Atlantic. The colonel was there and smilingly said it was all right, just as a true son of Kentucky should do, and gave his consent to have the 40,000 cross-shaped bottles broken up and carried away to make warehouse room for less sacred things that a profane and rebellious generation will buy and pay for, and showing, incidentally, that fiction has not got anything on truth when it comes to imaginative colonels and this cold and cruel world.—Indianapolis Star.

The peach basket hat. The peach basket hat has proved that it subserves a useful purpose. A young woman in New York thrown through the glass wind shield of a taxicab, was protected by her voluminous headgear from being cut by the flying splinters. The milliners may make the episode an excuse for bringing the hats of next season still further below the shoulders.—Philadelphia Ledger.

DEMOCRACY AND ANTI-DEMOCRACY.

[Columbus Press-Post.] When the war of the revolution, which began on the soil of Massachusetts and ended on the soil of old Virginia, had closed and the work of formulating a government was up in the body delegated with that duty, there were two ideas of the form and character of that government: Republic or Constitutional Monarchy. Thomas Jefferson stood for the former; Alexander Hamilton, the latter. Benjamin Franklin, the wisest man in the convention, perhaps, by his very nature was favorable to Constitutional Monarchy, but his wide and philosophic observation taught him that the new world had out of kings and kingly power and had its face turned toward representative self-government.

While the Jeffersonian idea was too broad, he was yet far-seeing enough to realize that its worst republicanism, as it was then called, was better than constitutional monarchy at its best, and by his action and advice made the adoption of the federal constitution in its original form possible, and against the opposition of the Hamilton idea.

So, too, when the alien and sedition laws, enacted under strained interpretations of that constitution, threatened to subvert the infant republic, the Jeffersonian idea swept the federalist or monarchial and Hamiltonian idea off the face of the political earth and placed Thomas Jefferson in the presidential chair.

Great as was the victory of the Jeffersonian idea, its founder and its friends realized that it must be safeguarded. Kentucky and Tennessee had come into the Union and were Jeffersonian, but they were too remote from the capital in a sense, and the friends of Jefferson and his political disciples in Ohio saw to it that it came in as a state in time to make his second election a certainty and the further development of the Hamilton or federalist idea impossible, at least, for a long period, if ever.

The framing and ratification of the Ohio constitution of 1802 was the safeguarding of the republic, for it made possible the consummation of the Jeffersonian plan of representative self-government. Had Jefferson been defeated in 1800 by the machinations that well-nigh won out, it is not probable that he would have been elected in 1804. Certain it is that had he lost in those contests the Hamilton idea would have taken control of the country and the first ten amendments to the constitution would never have been written into one, and we would be no higher, politically speaking, today than the United Kingdom—probably in the class with Mexico and Brazil.

It was the Jeffersonian idea and the action of the Jeffersonian democracy in Ohio in 1802-3 that eclipsed the Hamiltonian heresy, and made it possible for Americans in the first decade of the twentieth century to congratulate themselves that they are sovereigns, not subjects, and still be aware to the fact that "eternal vigilance is the price of liberty."

GAVE HER DUE WARNING.

A deaf pious English lady visiting a small country town in Scotland, went to church armed with an ear trumpet. The elders had never seen one, and crowded it with suspicion and uneasiness. After a short consultation, one of them went up to the lady, just before the opening of the services, and wagging his finger at her warningly whispered, "One foot, and you're out!"—Woman's Journal.

FRENCH TRADE

WITH UNITED STATES
SHOWS A HEAVIER
INCREASEDuring the Past Few Months
Than From Any Other Country.MANUFACTURES
AND LUXURIESForm the Principal Part of the Imports from France,While the Exports to That Country Are Materials
and Bread Stuffs.

Imports into the United States from France show an increase of 60 per cent in the months of February and March, while those from all Europe and from all the world during that time show in each case a gain of but about 45 per cent. The total value of imports from France in February, 1909, as shown by the records of the Bureau of Statistics, of the Department of Commerce and Labor, was 10 million dollars, against 6 1/2 millions in February of the preceding year; and in March, 1909, 11 1-3 millions, against 6 1/2 millions in March of the preceding year.

This large increase in the imports from France is due in part to increased requirements for manufacturers' materials, in part to increased purchases of luxuries by the people of the United States, and probably in some cases to anticipated increases in rates of duty on certain classes of articles coming from that country—especially luxuries.

Of the imports into the United States from France, a very large share is composed of articles usually classed as luxuries. Of diamonds, for instance, the imports from France in March, 1909, amounted to $591,717, against $51,224 in March of last year, being thus more than 10 times as great in value in March, 1909, as in March, 1908; of other precious stones, $481,942, against $98,424 in March of last year; of cotton laces, edgings, embroideries, etc., $1,054,293, against $605,714 in March, 1908; of silk manufactures, the total value imported from France in March of the present year was $1,907,497, against $1,173,183 in the corresponding month in 1908; of corsetage, $387,892, against $205,623 in March of last year; gloves of kid or other leather, $233,386, against $278,914 in the same month of last year; goat skins, $104,066, against $84,360 in March, 1908; olive oil, $149,657, against $84,196 in March, 1908.

Trade of the United States with France shows a steady growth both on the import and export sides. Our own figures of that trade show larger exports to France in 1908 than in any earlier year, and larger imports from France than in any earlier year, except 1906 and 1907. The total value of domestic merchandise exported from the United States to France in the fiscal year 1908 was 114 million dollars, against 111 million dollars in 1907; while in no earlier year had the value of domestic exports to that country crossed the 100 million dollar line. On the import side the total never crossed the 100 million dollar line until 1906, when the imports from France amounted to 108 million dollars; 1907, 128 millions, and 1908, 102 millions.

While the trade between France and the United States has not grown with as great rapidity as is the case with certain other countries, there has been a steady upward trend, the figures of both imports and exports, as already indicated, now exceeding 100 million dollars, thus being about double those of 20 years earlier. That the growth in exports to that country has not been as great as to other countries is quite apparent from the figures of the Bureau of Statistics, which show that exports to France in 1908 were but a little more than twice as great as in 1880, while to Germany they were more than three times as great as in 1880, and to Italy four times as great as in that year.

Notwithstanding the comparatively slow growth of our exports to France, a study of the official figures of that country shows that merchandise from the United States forms a steadily increasing share of her total imports. In the 5 years ending with 1879 merchandise from the United States formed 9.59 per cent of the imports of France; in the 5 years ending with 1884, 9.47 per cent; in the 5 years ending with 1889, 9.39 per cent; in the 5 years ending with 1894, 10.6 per cent; and in the 4 years ending with 1908, 11.06 per cent. On the other hand, the share which merchandise from France forms of the imports into the United States has somewhat declined, being 11.58 per cent in the 5 years ending with 1884; 9.76 per cent in the quinquennium ending with 1889; 8.7 per cent in the 5 years ending with 1894; 8.64 per cent in the 5 years ending with 1899; 8.77 per cent in the quinquennium ending with 1904; and 8.61 per cent in the 4 years ending with 1908.

The principal imports into the United States from France are manufactures and luxuries. Diamonds in the fiscal year 1908 were imported from France to a value of about 3 1/2 million dollars; feathers, fowls, etc., natural and artificial, 4 1/2 millions; laces, edgings, embroideries, etc., 4 millions; art works, 2 1/2 millions; automobiles, 2 millions; silk clothing and dress goods, 5 1/2 millions; silk laces, embroideries, and ribbons, 5 millions; champagnes, 4 1/2 millions; other wines, 1 million; distilled spirits, 1 1/2 millions; gloves, 3 1/2 millions; women dress goods, 3 millions; and olive oil, 1 1/2 millions; while among the articles for use in manufacturing are, hides and skins, 4 1/2 million dollars' worth; raw silk, 1 1/2 millions; india rubber, 1 million; argols, or galls, 1 million; and glycerine, 1 million.

The exports to France are chiefly manufacturers' materials and foodstuffs; the more important being, raw cotton, 51 million dollars; copper, 18 millions; cotton-seed oil, 4 1/2 millions; tobacco, 3 millions; crude mineral oil, 2 1/2 millions; wheat 2 1-3 millions; staves, 2 millions; boards, deals, and planks, nearly 1 million; and fertilizers, 1 million; while the principal manufactures exported to that country are, agricultural implements, 3 1/2 millions; machinery of iron and steel, 4 millions; leather and manufactures thereof, 1 million; and refined mineral oil, 6 1/2 millions.

Patience is the right bower of success. Muffled voices must be uncomfortable in warm weather. The wife of a baseball player need never lack for a muff. THE PRESIDENTIAL FOURSCORE.

After all, the presidential fourscore on the Washington links ended with the winning side only one hole up, although Mr. Taft's partner was Mr. Travis, the best golfer in this country, and one of the best in the world. Travis' medal score was 74, while the president's was something under 100, the various reports differing as to the exact figures, and no "card" being placed on record. If Travis had played with a golfer of equal skill the other side might have been 10 down, or even 18. Which only proves that golf, played in the midst of civilization, is a more difficult game for a statesman than lion shooting played in the wilderness with no authentic and visible reporters present. As a matter of fact, the president plays good golf for a president. To be sure, after an inspiring drive, straight as an arrow's flight, to the supposedly safe haven of the putting green, he required three putts. But 99 men of every 100 who play golf as a relaxation from the toils of professional life would have done the same thing. To miss a put is not only human, but common. To be impeccable on the putting green is to be a Travis.—New York Times.

COST OF PANAMA CANAL

Compared With That of Existing Canals for Ocean-going Ships.

"Of the existing canals for ocean-going ships, that of Suez was built by a company as a commercial undertaking—for the dividends on tolls. It cost $90,000,000. The Manchester Ship canal was partly commercial, partly industrial. This cost $75,000,000. The Kiel canal has furthered a military purpose, providing a short line of communication for warships. It cost $40,000,000. The Panama canal is commercial, industrial and military, and will cost more than all the above put together," says Vaughan Cornish, the eminent English geographer in his new work, "The Panama Canal and Its Makers," Little, Brown & Co., publishers.

"Up to June 30, 1908, the United States government has spent $126,047,062 on the Panama canal. The amount authorized to be appropriated by the Act of June 28, 1902, was $135,000,000, plus $50,000,000 purchase money, that is, $185,000,000 in all, for the canals, harbors and defenses." What the total cost will be is unknown, but Colonel Goethals stated in evidence that the canal would cost $250,000,000 and possibly as much as $500,000,000.

"The combined cost of the Suez, Manchester and Kiel canals has been $205,000,000."

"The following important ship canals have been completed for smaller sums:

U. S. S. St. Marie, (some-what more than)	$ 6,000,000
Canadian ditto (nearly)	4,000,000
Amsterdam	19,000,000
Cornith (about)	5,000,000
Cronstadt (about)	10,000,000
Welland (Lake Erie-Lake Ontario)	24,000,000

Total

Adding these figures to those already given, we have a grand total of $264,000,000 for the cost of nine of the greatest existing ship canals, which is about the same as the low current official estimate for the final cost of the Panama canal."

KNEW WAY TO SUCCESS.

At the end of the spring an enterprising tradesman opened a stationery shop, and sent the news broadcast that he would give the first customer a present on the opening morning.

Before the doors were opened there was seen an old woman clutching like grim death at the door handle. Just as the clock struck the appointed hour, and the crowd commenced to sway violently, a small boy popped round the corner and said:

"They're opening at the back!" On hearing this the crowd made a mad rush to the back. Imagine every one's dismay, and especially the woman's when on returning from their wild goose chase they found the shop open and the small boy issuing therefrom with the present.—Exchange.

FRANK E. HARMAN,

213-215 North Main St.,
LIMA, OHIO.

WHO ARE THE REAL REPUBLICANS OF THE U. S. SENATE?

The high priests of high protection assume that they are the republicans of the nation. They ignore the declaration in the Chicago platform, and in making a tariff bill discredit the president, who construed the tariff plank to mean downward revision. They go further, and assert that those republicans who seek to lower the existing high rates of duty are not republicans in the true sense of the word, that the senators who would square their acts in this extra session by the party pledges of last year have taken themselves out of the political organization now in power, and are not protectionists.

It is unfortunately true that in those states where political forces are coerced into submission to so-called business interests the election of those who make our laws has come to be merely a matter of mathematical calculation. It is simply a question of dollars and cents, and the obedience of candidates to monopoly dictation. Under these circumstances the perpetuation of the high tariff sanhedrin at Washington is an easy task.

In other parts of the country, where the underlying principles of the free government still obtain where rank and file of the party are to aspirants for official recognition are obliged to rely upon untrammeled public opinion for success, the situation is more hopeful. It is from these localities that come the little band of men now contending against the combined forces of commercial and financial combination, who, as to tariff rates are at present in charge of the destinies of the nation. Be it said to their credit, many of the senators representing the political minority joined, in Monday's test vote on lead, with those republicans from the great middle west who are striving to force down the proposed prohibitive rates. The high tariff leaders were successful by the small majority of eight.

An examination of the vea-and-nar record, however, is not at all discouraging. Several republicans known to be in earnest sympathy with the purposes of those who are doing battle against the defiant policy of the leaders, voted for the high rate on lead from motives entirely honorable and not wholly indefensible.

Assuming that there is no foundation for the rumor that the finance committee has a satisfactory understanding with half a dozen democratic senators whereby the latter are to come to the rescue of the bill if their votes are needed, there is a very fair prospect that the bill will be amended in several important particulars. The question of who are the real republicans of the senate—whether the rank and file of the party are to follow those who would repudiate the platform and ignore public opinion, or whether a new and more conservative leadership is to fully develop itself will be determined. We shall see what we shall see. Washington ignorance of the facts. Death for kidnappers would be no less than they deserve, but it seems probable that the imprisonment is really a worse punishment and will have a more lasting effect upon evil doers.

It remains to be said that here is a heinous crime which has been punished with promptitude. The law has worked swiftly, justly and inexorably. There has been no maudlin sentiment in favor of the accused, nor has there been anything withholding of lawful defense. It is an exhibition that is all the more gratifying because the wheels of justice so often move slowly and ineffectually. Every patent will sleep better tonight because the hearthstone is sated than before. There is no more cold-blooded crime in the world than kidnapping, since it involves an attack on the fundamentals of society and has no reasonable excuse in any event. Justice is avenged. WEALTH IN PEAT.

The promise held forth by a great installation in northwest Germany for that utilization of the immense peat bogs that exist there leads to the suggestion in England that the huge bog of Allen in Ireland, may next become a great center of industry. The German government contemplates the bringing of a large part of the bogs under cultivation together with the conversion of the peat into fuel to be employed in the development of electrical energy for agricultural purposes, as well as for supplying light and power to a number of towns situated within a radius of fifty miles. A network of canals is to be formed to drain the ground, and the peat dredged out is to be utilized in the way just described. It is estimated that the gas produced from the peat will furnish work to the amount of 600 horse-power hours for each ton and a large quantity of ammonia will be recovered for use as manure.

TARTAN: Gold Medal Flour leads them all.

AFRAID TO ARREST.

Is this government of ours afraid of great big malefactors? Recently it unearthed a cold-blooded scheme by the sugar trust to defraud it out of customs duties, on which sugar is weighed. The trust has already acknowledged the crime by the payment of over $2,000,000 in cash to back duties.

The discrepancy in weight between what it paid the government duty on and what it paid the growers for would have shown it once if the fraud was not being done with its countenance, that something was wrong. A score or more of weights in its employ were required to manipulate the seventeen scales that the government found out were fixed. They would hardly do this unless paid for it.

So far no observable steps have been taken to bring to criminal prosecution the responsible heads of the trust for this crookedness and short-weighting of which they must have known. An awful sin is being raised over the discovery and arrest of some importers of dress goods in New York city who have been smuggling to a much less extent, and in a much less reprehensible way than the sugar trust.

But then they are smaller fry, with no big political and financial connections. Why this delay and consideration shown the trust? Perhaps the same occult force that gives sugar the tariff protection it likes is shielding it now. If not, why is it not treated in any common-sensical doing the same tricks would be? FIGHT WITH DEVILFISH.

A party of English fishermen had an unusual and most exciting experience in the Panuco river yesterday with a large sting ray or devilfish. It is very rarely that these fish are seen in the river, for they are supposed to confine themselves to the sea, although they are often encountered near the coast along the south Atlantic and in the Gulf of Mexico. Occasionally a small devilfish is taken by fishermen near the coast of Florida, but their appearance in the Panuco river is something unheard of before.

The party of fishermen in question consisted of Capt. A. Faget, Capt. Volkmann, Sir Charles Cost, Maj. Ramsden, Capt. Robert Duff, and Lady Juliet Duff, who were out in small boats in quest of tarpon when three of these monster rays were encountered. One of the boats being supplied with a small harpoon, threw it into the nearest ray. The other boats came to the assistance and made fast in an effort to keep the first boat, which was being fast towed seaward by the monster devilfish, but the five boats and a launch which had come up in the meantime were towed down the river with as little effort as if they had been mere toys invented for the plaything of this queer shaped monster. After several minutes of the wildest excitement which has ever been experienced by fishermen in the Panuco they succeeded in dragging the monster into comparatively shallow water, and were congratulating themselves on the probable capture of the great fish when the monster gave a mighty flop that threatened to engulf all the small boats, dashed under the launch, almost capsizing it, and succeeded in tearing out the harpoon and thus escaped. This fish is said to measure at least 18 feet from tip to tip of its wing-shaped fins, or flippers, while the two others, from the glimpse gained, were nearly the same size. Tampico Letter in Mexican Herald.

OPPORTUNITY: Gold Medal Flour is nourishing.

DREAD NEW DISEASE.

Nothing connected with the hunting trip of Theodore Roosevelt through the wilds of the African big game region has occasioned more surprise in European scientific circles than is caused by his alleged amusement at the possibility of becoming infected with sleeping sickness. The peril is far more substantial than Mr. Roosevelt seems to suspect according to the correspondents of European dailies writing from Zambesi and Uganda. If Mr. Roosevelt will look at a map of the region he is to traverse and compare with the chart of the distribution of sleeping sickness published four years ago he will see reason to feel less amused at what awaits him, according to the Paris Temps. During the years since the publication of this chart the scourge has widened the area it ravages.

No long time has passed, it is pointed out in London Knowledge, since Mr. Hesketh Bell, the governor of Uganda, called attention to the terrible ravages of sleeping sickness in that territory. Sufferings which are calculated to excite the most lively compassion in the minds of all who are able to realize either their character or their extent. We are assured, are in store for the hunter so unfortunate as to fall a victim to the disease. Nevertheless, the sleeping sickness, in spite of the discoveries with reference to it made during the past ten years, remains a great mystery.

The place of origin of the disease, it appears from this study of the topic, is uncertain. It is believed by some experts to have been introduced into Uganda from East Africa. Other students of the spot contend that it arose in the Congo region, whence it gradually made its way along the western shores of the Victoria Nyanza. Several years ago eight cases of a new malady were noted among the natives of Uganda and six months later it was reported that this new malady had occasioned 200 deaths on the island of Ruwuma, and that thousands of persons seemed to be infected.

WORKING TO MUSIC.

Major J. W. V. Kennon now commanding a battalion of the Tenth Infantry, U. S. A., in building the famous Benguet road through the mountains of northern Luzon Philippine Islands, accomplished a feat called humanely impossible. It took music money and a mongrel mix of 4,000 men to do it but Benguet road stands today one of the remarkable highways of the world. Major Kennon's army of 4,000 road builders did not like to work when the did it was with slow, sluggish movement.

One day Kennon assembled his band, made up of men of all nations and ordered it to move quickly and secretly to a place where several hundred Filipinos were engaged in drilling holes in the canyon walls, and play a favorite oriental air.

Along the way and played wherever they worked. From laborers worth about 10 cents a day they developed into musical machines that worked to drum beats. Kennon insists that his band saved the Filipino government thousands of dollars. Chicago News.

GAMES POSTPONED

On Account of Rain Through out the Ohio State Circuit.

LOCALS ANXIOUS TO TRY DIGGERS

Piper Goes to Newark and Bushelman Signs at Mansfield.

GAMES TODAY.

Yesterday's Results. Mansfield vs. Newark. Rain. Lima vs. Marion. Rain. Lancaster vs. Portsmouth. Rain.

Clubs.	Won.	Lost.	Pct.
LIMA	10	3	.769
Lancaster	8	6	.571
Portsmouth	7	7	.500
Marion	8	9	.471
Mansfield	6	8	.429
Newark	8	12	.333

All games were postponed in the Ohio State circuit Thursday on account of rain, which will give the players a rest and no doubt be of general benefit. The Clegarmakers were scheduled at Marion, and they were anxious to get a try at the Diggers, as the teams have not met this season. O'Day's men proved a tough proposition for the locals last season and the series will be watched with interest by the fans.

Flood Signs Bushelman. Jack Bushelman, last year with Toledo, Portsmouth and Newark, has signed by Manager Tim Flood. He will report at once.

Bushelman is a star of the first water, when he has his delivery under control, his wildness being his only fault last season. He has everything that pitcher requires and if he is able to master his curves this summer should easily prove the best in the league.

He worked in 22 games last season with Portsmouth and Newark winning 7 and losing 15 a .318 per cent. Both clubs were tail-enders. He was let out and worked for a while in the Western Association.

Bushelman at Toledo last Spring was considered the 2nd of the year. He worked one splendid game against the Boston Americans, and John R. Taylor offered $5,000 for his release. Manager Armons asked $7,000 and the deal was called off. Bushelman then developed lack of control and was sent to Portsmouth for $300. With a steady catcher building him, Jack Bushelman should be able to overcome his fault of wildness and prove to be a winner. Mansfield Shined.

Piper Goes to Newark. Catcher P. J. Piper, until recently with the Lancaster baseball club, has been signed with the Newark club and he will work in the game tomorrow. The weather permitting, Dr. H. H. Baker, the club physician, reported this morning that Manager Davidson had turned his ankle in the game yesterday and that the league was out of the game for several days with his split finger and the team seemed to be up against it.

Danote Rallege wasn't to be outdone by a few injured, however, and he phoned Piper with the result that that man reached Newark at noon today and affixed his signature to a Newark contract. The signing of Piper will be a big thing for the local club for Piper can be used very nicely as a backstop and this is considered the first move towards strengthening the club.—Newark Advocate.

Persons afflicted with Eczema, Scrofula, Psoriasis, Ulcers, Pimples, etc., frequently have recourse to strong astringent external remedies to dry up and close the pores of the skin in order to get temporary relief, forgetting, in their anxiety that by so doing they are forcing the poisonous germs back into the blood to reassert itself, a month later, in the old disease area, or on some other part of the body, in a more malignant form. How much better to help the blood throw off the impurities which cause these diseases, and get permanent relief. ON NORTHERN TRIP

Dr. E. J. Barrington and His Bride Have Gone for Fortnight.

QUIET WEDDING WAS CELEBRATED

At Eight O'clock Thursday Night at Father Manning's Residence.

The marriage of Miss Anna Corcoran and Dr. E. J. Barrington was quietly solemnized last evening at 8 o'clock at the residence of Father A. E. Manning, pastor of St. Rose church.

The bride and groom were attended by Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Douglas and immediately following the impressive taking of the vows, they repaired to the home of the bride on west Wayne street, where a delicious wedding supper was served to the immediate family alone. The table was handsomely adorned with cut flowers and ferns, and an appetizing menu served.

At 10 o'clock Dr. Barrington and his bride left for a trip north, and they will spend ten days or two weeks at Detroit, and other northern points. The bride wore as her wedding gown her beautiful traveling suit of terra cotta cloth, with a large black picture hat, with waving terra cotta plumes, which was very becoming to her brunette coloring.

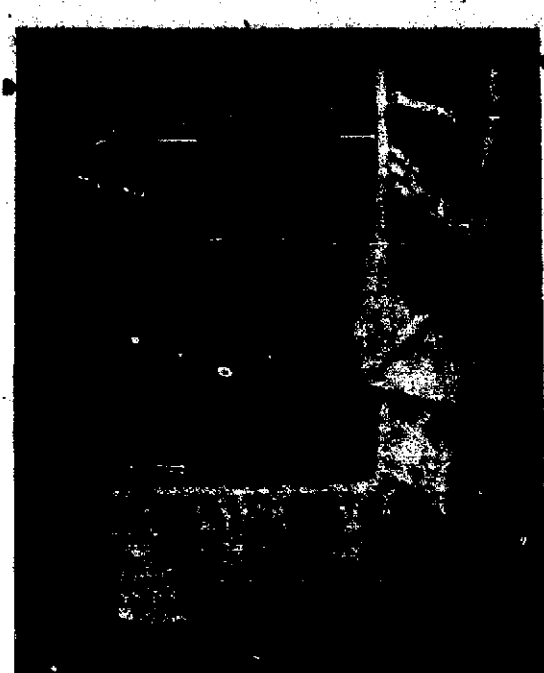

The bride has lived here almost her entire life and has a large circle of friends who wish her all happiness. The groom has practiced dentistry in this city for several years and belongs to a prominent family of St. Mary's, where his parents reside.

Upon their return they will make their residence at 798 west Wayne street, where they will be at home to their friends after June 15th.

FROM SOUTHERN BATTLEFIELD HISTORIC GAVELS WERE SENT.

Dr. and Mrs. Hall Recipients of Gifts From Former

Limaite.

COL. NICHOLAS
WAS THE DONOR.

And Dogwood Growing at Resaca, Ga., Furnished the Wood.

A most interesting ceremony took place Monday evening at the reg-ment of the G. A. R. After the business had been transacted, the department secretary of the G. A. R. of Ohio, Mrs.
Francis, rose and in a pleasing manner presented both Mrs. Virginia Hall, department president of the G. A. R., and Dr.
George Hall, president of the Department of Ohio, gavel made from a dogwood tree which grew on the battlefield of the first real battle of Sherman's Atlanta campaign, the battle of Resaca, Georgia. The gavel was made by Col. D. D. Nicholas, of Knoxville, Tenn., formerly of Lima,
and well known and well remembered
by the old soldiers of this city as well as many others.

Col. Nicholas had written to Mrs.
Hall the following letter which tells the story of the making of the gavel.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 10, 1909.
Mrs. Virginia Hall, President, Department of Ohio, Ladies of the G.
A. R., Lima, Ohio.

Dear Mrs. Hall:
If you allow me to present to you a gavel whose history might interest you, and which I should be glad to have you use while presiding
at the meetings of the Ladies of the Grand Army of the Republic of Ohio.

Several weeks ago while on a trip to Georgia, I visited the battle ground of Resaca, where on May 14th, 1864, occurred the fight between the forces commanded by General Sherman, and General Johnson,
in which so many of our brave soldiers lost their lives. Very near the spot where I myself was wounded, I found the dogwood of which this gavel was made.

It is with great pleasure that I now present it to be used in the Grand Encampment of the Department of Ohio, more than 45 years after that battle, which many of the comrades remember so vividly, hoping that after it has served the Ladies of the Grand Army, long and well, some corner may be found for it in the Memorial hall room, for the sake of those whose lives were lost that day.

With best wishes for the prosperity of your organization, and warm personal regards from Mrs. Nicholas and myself, for both you and Dr. Hall, I am,
Yours very truly,
D. D. NICHOLAS.

In presenting the tokens which I have great historical value Mrs.
Francis used the following pretty and factual speech in which she complimented both the donor and the recipients.

I have been asked by a friend to grant him a favor, on the anniversary of the battle of Resaca, Georgia.
The battle having been fought on the 14th day of May, I am just three days late in complying with his request. The 14th of May this year marks the forty-fifth anniversary of the battle of Resaca, Georgia, the last great battle of Sherman's Atlanta campaign.

One of Allen county's boys in blue,
a member of Co. F, 118th Regt. Ohio Volunteers, was desperately wounded

in an assault on the rebel works. His wound being of such a nature, however, that after a tedious period in hospital, he recovered and rejoined his regiment, with which he served to the close of the war.

Coming to Lima soon after his return from the service, and identifying himself with her interests, he married into one of her oldest and best families.

A few years later business interests necessitated a change of residence.

He therefore moved his little family to sunny Tennessee where he still resides with the wife of his youth who yet abides with him, and two charming daughters who grace his home.

As the anniversary of the battle of Resaca drew nigh, he became possessed with a desire to go down into Georgia, to walk over the battlefield, and note the changes wrought by father time, in the five and forty years past.

Accordingly, one beautiful balmy morning a few days later, he found himself upon this historic battlefield,
wandering through the luxuriant growth of the Rhododendron in full bloom, and the mountain laurel whose swollen buds were just ready to burst into magnificent blossoms,
and the wealth of sweet honey-suck-
les trailing and climbing everywhere,
and filling the air with its delicate perfume.

Having found to his satisfaction
the ground upon which he fell before the withering fire of the enemy. The "tide" of years began to roll backward. He was a soldier boy again pressing forward with his comrades in the charge. The booming of cannon, the roll of musketry, the crash
of artillery, the hursting of shells, mingled with the groans of the wounded, all unforgotten sounds that came rushing through his memory.

The familiar faces of his comrades whom he saw for the last time that May day, and friends from whom he had been long separated, came trooping along in a mighty throng.

Upon waking from his reveries his surroundings became calm and beautiful, with not a sound to disturb the quietness, save the warbling of the birds.

He desired to show, by deed as well as word, that the lapse of over a quarter of a century has not in the least dimmed his appreciation of friends left in Lima, and requests me to present to Mrs. Virginia Hall, President of the Department of Ohio, Ladies of the Grand Army, this emblem
of authority, a souvenir from the battlefield of Resaca, to be used at her coming convention, at the close of a very successful administration.

It gives me much pleasure, Mrs.
Hall, to perform this duty in behalf of a mutual friend, D. D. Nicholas, of Knoxville, Tenn.

I am also intrusted with a like remembrance for the Department Commander of Ohio, G. A. R., from the Commander of Ed Maynard Post, of Knoxville, Tennessee, Col. D. D.
Nicholas.

Mrs. Hall first received her gavel,
which was silver mounted and engraved with her name, date of battle,
and date of presentation, and rising
spoke just a few words of acceptance,
"Sister Francis:

It is with feelings of the deepest gratitude I accept this present from your hands, you, one of my dearest friends for many years, and this historical emblem coming from Col. D.
D. Nicholas, an old friend and neighbor, gives it greater value. I certainly appreciate it all more than words can tell, and shall be proud to use it in our Department convention at Newark, and trust I shall honor both you and the donor, of this beautiful gift.

Then Dr. Hall received his memento of the southern battlefield, and he also made but a short talk, in which he expressed the pleasure of receiving such a bit of wood, imbued with the history of days past and gone, but which will live not only in INFORMATION WANTED.

At a regular meeting of Matt
Armstrong Post No. 202, the com-

LADY DARRELL

Will Surely Please Audience
Tonight.

Those who witnessed the performance at the Opera House this afternoon, when the matinee production of "Lady Darrell" was given by the St. John's Dramatic club, were more than pleased with the rendition. The young people seemed confident and sure of themselves and of their parts, thus contributing much toward the smooth movement and progress of the acts.

Tonight they expect a much larger crowd, and after the appearance of this afternoon on a larger stage than the one to which they have been accustomed, they will no doubt be even better in their varying characters.

The plot of the play is one that can be followed easily and one that will not fail to interest the listener.

THE OLDEST VEGETABLE.

Onions are almost the best nervine known. No medicine, it is claimed, is as useful in cases of nervous prostration, and there is nothing else that will relieve so quickly and tone up the whole system. Onions are helpful in all cases of cough,
colds and influenza, and if eaten regularly are very good for the complexion.

As a laxative, as a poultice, or as a sleep producer the onion works like a charm. A drop of the juice will cure earache and persistent application is said to cure deafness.
Onion juice, too, is a well-known hair restorer. In olden times a famous ointment called Devil's Mustard, was supposed to cure cancer,
to relieve tumors, etc. It was compounded of garlic, which is of the onion family, and olive oil.

Empress Nero thought that eating leeks improved the human voice,
and she was ambitious of being a fine singer. He had a leek diet on several days each month. Pliny recommended garlic as a remedy for many of the mental ailments of the country people. Bacon gravely tells of a man who lived several days on the smell of onions and garlic alone.

It is a popular belief that a traveler becomes acclimated quickly by eating onion in every country visited;
and the onion eater is supposed to be practically immune from contagious diseases.

Undoubtedly the onion is the oldest vegetable known to mankind,
several thousand years have passed since the building of the first pyramid, and even then Egypt was an old country and its people were civilized. Ten thousand years ago the onion was brought into Egypt
from India. History can tell us no more. The sacred writings of the Hindoo and the oldest record of the Chinese mention the onion as a cultivated plant—always cultivated. If we would leave history for some other time of inquiry. We find ourselves climbing the mountains of Afghanistan and Beloochistan and exploring the table-lands behind the Hindu Kush mountains, and there—in the birthplace of mankind—we find the allium cepa, from which have sprang

all the onions grown over the world.
Both Pliny and Juvenal, among the old writers, and many Egyptologists of our time and country have recorded that the ancient Egyptians worshipped the onion; it was admired as a common offering on every altar and the priests were forbidden to eat it.

Herodotus tells us that garlic was the dainty food of the Egyptian laborer, and the Jews when they left Egypt looked back with fondness to these delicacies: "We remembered
the fish which we did eat freely in Egypt, the cucumbers and the melons and the leeks, and the onions,
and the garlic," so they told Moses.
The Mohammedans, however, do not seem to reverence the allium tribe; on the contrary, they have a tradition that when Satan stepped out of the Garden of Eden after the fall of man, garlic sprang up where he placed his right foot. This is the reason why Mohammed could never bear the smell of either, and even fainted when he saw them.—Kansas City Journal.

PROMANAGED

Her Life by Living Constantly With Young People.

New York, May 21.—That aged persons could prolong their lives if they associated constantly with young persons was the firm belief of Mrs. Yvonne Schulman, who died in this city yesterday at the age of 105 years.

She is survived by 13 children and 25 grand children, and it was her habit to spend the greater part of the time playing out doors with the little ones when the weather permitted.

Mrs. Schulman's death was due to natural causes and despite her age, she never wore glasses.

WELCOME TO THE WRIGHTS.

It is no staid greetings America gives to the Wright brothers, returning from aerial triumphs in Europe. It is barely 19 months since Wilbur Wright went abroad to demonstrate his machine in France, while Orville Wright remained to engage in government tests at Fort Meyer. The brief period, however, measures the period between private achievements in flight and public acceptance of their work as the greatest advance yet made in aeronautics with heavier than air machines. Their present success is the consistent fruit of years of study and toil with one purpose in view. For this reason especially and because there is no happy accident of the moment do they deserve the city's and the nation's honor.—New York Herald.

WOMEN WHO WORK.

Widows, 500,000 of them, and more, were earning their living in the United States in the year 1900, and married women, likewise, the number of more than 700,000, and divorced women likewise, to the number of more than 60,000. One million, six hundred thousand of them altogether!

These widowed working women, these married workingwomen, these divorced workingwomen together, were a full third and more of the grand total of 4,600,000 of American workingwomen, 16 years of age and over, in the United States in the last census year.

How many women were there, 25 years of age and over, in the United States in 1900? There were approximately 16,700,000. And how many married women workers, widowed women workers and divorced women workers were there? There were approximately 1,500,000.

Which is to say that in the total female population of the United States, married and unmarried, working and not working, rich and poor, 25 years of age and over, in the year 1900, one woman out of every 11, had passed her wedding day and nevertheless was a breadwinner.—"The Woman's Invasion," in the April Everybody's.

A new form of loan has been adopted whereby the privilege of reducing the principal monthly is granted the borrower. The many who have already obtained money from THE LIMA HOME AND SAVINGS ASSOCIATION under this new plan, highly endorse it, because every payment made is so divided in the pass book as to show how much is used for interest and how much to reduce the principal. There is also a column showing every time a payment is made, how much of the principal is unpaid. A plan so simple as this will commend itself to every borrower. May we not have the opportunity of discussing our plan with you.

HIG MAN OF CANADA.

Donald D. Mann—this is a name that stands for big things in Canada. The strongest of the new leaders of the dominion, Mann is called the J. J. Hill of the north.

The building of the Canadian Northern, paralleling the Canadian Pacific from Port Arthur to the ocean, the Ontario Power company at Niagara Falls, the Canadian Pacific short line through Maine, these are some of the big enterprises which bear Mann's name.

With his wonderful success, carved from the native resources of his country, Mann has remained the most loyal of Canadians. He is a pronounced opponent of reciprocity, taking the position that Canada is strong enough to stand on her own feet before the world.

Mann was born in Ontario in 1853. He got the western fever early and started with nothing but a subcontractor on the Canadian Pacific, then building out of Winnipeg. Operating on credit at first, he took long chances, but chances always backed by the shrewdest judgment. He won, and won again.

Before he was thirty Mann had completed a number of big contracts, and uniting his fortunes with young William Mackenzie, had begun to make his name known all over Canada.

In later years Mann has carried through gigantic contracts all over the world. He has done work all over South America and is an authority on the railroad possibilities of China. The Canadian Northern proposition was undertaken by him and his partner on their own initiative, while the dominion parliament was spending years of debate as to whether the government should put in a trans-continental railroad in Canada.

CORNER AND FARMER.

"It isn't the farmer who gains by the wheat corner prices, it's the speculator. The farmer gets little good and much harm by erratic boosting of the price."

So Charles S. Garrett, of Georgia, national president of the Farmers' Union of America, threw back a denial at the Patten defense while in Richmond.

It has been a favorite argument of those who defend the Patten corner that the high prices were a benefit to the producer and that a good corner encouraged more farmers to raise wheat. Barrett laughed when this was put up to him.

"It's rubbish," he said.

"They used to say the same thing about cotton manipulation," he said. "But the grower had always patted with his cotton too soon. Next year he would exert himself to raise a big crop and would find it with the result that the prices were down to nothing the next year."

"This is an arbitrary and spasmodic price," Garrett said, "and it is a price that is only a reflection of the price of wheat in the world market."

"Very few of the wheat raisers are getting any benefit from Patten's corner. They've disposed of the wheat already."

"Salvation of the wheat farmer lies in a strong organization where the farmers can band together to keep wheat up to high permanent basis. Not up to $1.50 one year and down to 50 cents the next. There's nothing in that for us."

HIS KINDLY ACT.

In a Sunday school class recently the teachers sought to impress upon the small boys the virtue of kindly and helpful deeds.

"Now," said she, "let every boy here try to do some kindness during the week and next Sunday report what he did."

Next Sunday arrived, and the teacher proceeded to listen to stories of good deeds done. Finally she reached the smallest boy in the class. His age is nine.

"Well, Willie," she said, "have you done any kindness for any one, anything really helpful, during the week?"

"Yes'm."

"What was it?"

"I let another kid copy me 'rithmetic lesson off me book in school."

ON KEEPING PROMISE.

"Unless we act in accordance with our promises, or if we only keep the word of promise to the ear and break it to the hope, we shall be made accountable to the American people and suffer such consequences as failure to keep faith has always been visited with. It would be better to have no revision at all unless we are going honestly and fairly to revise the tariff on the basis promised by our party."—William H. Taft.

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT.

The mortality under chloroform averages one person in 10,000.

According to a Cornell university professor insect pests cost the farmers of the country over $700,000,000 a year.

When a hen attains her third year her laying capacity is at its best. She will lay, on an average, from 300 to 500 eggs in her lifetime.

Authoritative opinions hold that the number of sheep in all countries in the world decreased from 400,000,000 in 1873 to 300,000,000 in 1908.

Germany has spent $150,000,000 in the last twenty years in the development and improvement of inland waterways. As a result the empire has now 8,278 miles of navigable streams and canals.

Concrete itself is very old. The concrete stairs of Colchester and Rochester castles still show the marks of the incensing boards; the cone of Agrippa's Pathway, which is 142 feet in diameter, is of concrete and fragments of concrete buildings are found in Mexico and Peru.

In the railway mail service in 1888 before it was brought into the classified service under the law, there was error in distribution of mail matter for every 7,500 pieces correctly handled; in 1897, some years after the new system became operative, there were 12,000 pieces accurately sorted for every one that went astray.

The tie-trailing plant of the Mexican Central railroad has reached an output of 3,500 ties a day, making it one of the largest concerns of its kind in the world. The plant is the first in the history of railway operation to make a success of the treatment of ties by the Elbano oil process. It is expected that the treatment will prolong the life of each tie from eight to twelve years.

WORK OF JUVENILE COURT.

In his work of reforming juvenile delinquents the judge of the juvenile court must of necessity meet with many disappointments. If a boy born with criminal instincts neither threatening nor cajoling on the part of the judge is likely to have much effect upon him, and the last resource is the industrial school.

On the other hand, however, there are hundreds of boys who through exuberance of spirits or a love of mischief thoughtlessly violate one or other of our laws. We used to hale such boys before the police court, treat them as criminals, although they may have had no criminal intentions, and place a stigma upon them that they could never rid themselves of. Today these lads are dealt with by the juvenile court, and in the great majority of cases the boy is induced to be less exuberant or to give up bad companions, if these be shown to be the cause of his getting into trouble.—Detroit Journal.

Occasionally you meet a man so impolite that his rudeness shows care, training and preparation.

WOMEN WHO WORK.

Widows, 500,000 of them, and more, were earning their living in the United States in the year 1900, and married women, likewise, the number of more than 700,000, and divorced women likewise, to the number of more than 60,000. One million, six hundred thousand of them altogether!

These widowed working women, these married workingwomen, these divorced workingwomen together, were a full third and more of the grand total of 4,600,000 of American workingwomen, 16 years of age and over, in the United States in the last census year.

How many women were there, 25 years of age and over, in the United States in 1900? There were approximately 16,700,000. And how many married women workers, widowed women workers and divorced women workers were there? There were approximately 1,500,000.

Which is to say that in the total female population of the United States, married and unmarried, working and not working, rich and poor, 25 years of age and over, in the year 1900, one woman out of every 11, had passed her wedding day and nevertheless was a breadwinner.—"The Woman's Invasion," in the April Everybody's.

S.S.S. CURES
S.S.S. BLOOD POISON

When the blood becomes infected with the virus of Contagious Blood Poison, the symptoms are soon manifested. The mouth and throat ulcers, copper-colored spots appear, a red rash breaks out, the hair begins to come out, and usually sores and ulcers show themselves on different parts of the body. At the first sign of the disease S.S.S. should be taken, for the trouble is too powerful and dangerous to trifle with. If allowed to run on the tendency is to work down and attack the bones and nerves, and sometimes it makes a complete physical wreck of the sufferer. The disease can make no such headway if S.S.S. is commenced and used according to directions; its progress can be stopped, the poison removed, and health preserved. S.S.S. goes into the blood and removes the insidious virus, cleanses the circulation and makes a complete and permanent cure by driving out the cause. S.S.S. quickly takes effect on the blood, and gradually the symptoms disappear, the health is improved, the skin cleared of all spots, sores and blemishes, and when S.S.S. has thoroughly purified the circulation no trace of the disease is left. S.S.S. is a purely vegetable remedy, pure, tested and proven for more than forty years. Home treatment book and any medical advice free to all who write.

TERRIBLE FIRE WASTE.

If every year Jersey City were wiped out of existence by fire all America would exclaim at the terrible calamity, and repetition of the event would make it the more appalling. Yet the annual loss from fire in the United States exceeds the assessed valuation of all tangible property in the city of 250,000 souls across the Hudson, and we think virtually nothing of it. Or, to put the case in another way: If we were to put in force the preventive measures so effective in foreign cities this country would probably save $200,000,000 a year, or enough in five years to pay the national debt. There is abundance of talk in these days of conserving natural resources. Why not begin by stopping some of the fire waste and thus preventing the enormous drain on those resources.—New York Herald.

Home Encouragement.

After searching every home in Dayton, Ohio, not a man has been found who has not always profited that the Wright Brothers would be successful. Of course, the discouraging remarks and the slurs and sneers they came out for some years were simply to encourage the boys.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

AN OLDTIME STORY WRITER.

The announcement of the death of Mrs. Augusta Evans Wilson at her home in Mobile, Ala., will not mean a great deal to the younger generation of readers, but to their fathers and mothers it will revive memories of many happy and thrilling hours with her books. She was born at Columbus, Ga., May 8, 1835, and in 1868 was married to Colonel L. M. Wilson, a prominent banker of Mobile. Her first novel was "Inez," published in 1856, and this was followed by "Marion," in 1864. Two years later she published her most popular book, "St. Elmo," which has run through edition after edition. It still enjoys a steady sale, and we are privileged to say that a prominent and successful American playwright is at present at work on a dramatization of "St. Elmo" for production next season. Another popular book from her pen is "Vashti," published in 1869. Six years later "Intellect" was published, and then twelve years elapsed before the publication of her next work, "At the Mercy of Father," which was published in 1902, and aroused more or less ridicule, for the mannerisms and extravagances of the author who was popular forty years ago were out of place in this age of literary refinement and restraint. Rochester Post-Express.

JAPANESE
In America Are Largely Concentrated in California.

Tokyo, Thursday, April 15.—
According to statistics recently compiled there were in December, 1928, 50,100 Japanese subjects in the United States of America, and out of that total more than 52 per cent in California and its immediately neighboring states. In California itself, 50 per cent of the total were found, and of those 20 per cent were engaged in labor on railroads and in mines.
The remaining 24 per cent being occupied with agriculture.

It is in the last named interests above that anything like signal success has been attained. There are about 14,000 Japanese farms in the state of Iowa, and they own aggregated areas of 1,200,000 acres. Many of the settlers have been living there for some ten to thirty years. They speak English and may, said to be virtually domiciled.

They sent to their home country in 1928, $5,100,000.

FLYING REVAUVS KITE TRADE.
"We are not taking the interest in flight that should be," said an aviator, "France, where the Wrights are established to our shame, leads the world in aeronautics, and in consequence the French kite business has grown here at all wood.

Kitemakers have sprung up everywhere in France. Their little shops are full of long bamboo poles,
bolts of scarlet silk and blue muslin,
and in show cases the folded kites
that are as big, outspread, as an aero-plane.

In studying the air one must begin with the kite, as in studying mathematics one must begin with arithmetic. The enthusiastic and intelligent French know this and many an automobile, halting far out in the Landes of Var county, discharges a young student and a folded kite that measures, when opened out, 18 or 20 feet across.

Yes, the French kitemaker is prospering nowadays, and clever he is too, with his bamboo frames and curving planes of tight-stretched scarlet silk."

THE STAGE.
Nancy and Jack.
On next Monday afternoon at the Parrot, Nancy Boyer and Jack Warburton will commence their farewell engagement as joint stars. They will offer a number of new plays,
that for Monday being "The Fatal Laziness. Matinees will be given every day except Thursday, when Rose Melville will appear in "His Hopkins." The engagement of the Nancy and Jack company will extend through to Monday, May 21st,
when two special "Excelsior Day"
performances will be given.

Rose Melville in "His Hopkins."
The production of "His Hopkins,"
which will again be seen at the Paror, opens house next Thursday night with Miss Rose Melville, the creator of the Posey county girl, in the title role, which is one of the most picturesque which has been given.
Mr. J. R. Stirling, Miss Melville's manager, has an unusual-strong company in support of his star, and the scenic dress of the pieces is new down to the smallest detail of accessory. The costuming has been made afresh and therefore been introduced into the famous scenery scene some brilliant specialties.

WARNING TO FARMERS.
A press bulletin of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, issued May 10th, says:
"The fly which produces the wheat
joint worm will issue from straw stacks and old stubble fields during the coming ten days or two weeks in southern Ohio and will be only a week or two later in northern Ohio.
Warm weather will hurry them out.
Farmers should make an immediate examination of their mowed straw and old stubble fields and ascertain if the insects are present in the hardened portions of the straw and if they are ready to emerge.

"When present in any numbers
worth considering it is recommended by the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station that the infested straw be burned
at once and that whenever possible old stubble fields be burned over. Where clover interferes with burning stubble loosen as much of the stubble as possible with a hayrack or harrow, and drag, or burn in windrows in the field even if it be certain that some clover will be killed. At the present outlook many locations in Ohio are liable to suffer more from this pest
this summer than they did last year."

surance company refused to insure
Mr. Roosevelt must be incorrect. It probably refused to insure the lions.

Will Call On Her Friends.
It was Dolly Madison who set down the principle that the wife of the president should not make calls and it is Mrs. Taft who announces that she will call on her friends just as usual. Some way or other this seems to be going against democratic simplicity and modesty and is good Americanism.—Philadelphia Inqui-

ALTERNATIVE IN RABBI.
Rabbi Stephen Wise of New York
said yesterday at the Colony Club.
We face today two tragic paradoxes. First the unemployed man, who has a right to work, and, second,
employed child who has a right
not to work.

A reporter complimented Rabbi
Wise upon this program's brilliance.
Brilliant or not, it is true, the rabbi answered, "It is particularly true in the child's case. The child, poor thing, is always getting the worst of it. Some legal and permissible way is always being found to do him wrong."

Rabbi Wise smiled.
There was a little boy," he said,
"who was given underdone apple pie
for his supper. The little boy ate heartily of the pie at his mother's and in great pain he roared justly."

A visitor said with a frown to his mother.
He's got no business to yell like that. If he were my child he'd get a good, sound spanking.

He deserves it," the mother admitted. "I don't believe, though, in spanking him on a full stomach."

Neither do I," said the visitor,
"but you can turn him over."

CHILLY.

But her husband suffers chills.

THINGS TO THINK ABOUT.
About 10,000 tourists visited Cuba
during the last winter season to March 1.

The world's entire supply of the oil of bergamot comes from a small section of Calabria, fronting on the straits of Messina.

The exports of dolls and toys from Coburg to the United States during 1928 amounted to $1,920,985, as compared with $2,862,446 in 1927,
a decrease of 32.4 per cent.

There are twenty lepers—half of them whites—in the hospital in New South Wales. From 1883, when the lazaret was established, to the end of 1927, 114 persons have been isolated there.

At a meeting of the Academy of Science in Paris it was established recently that ultra-violet rays passed through milk will completely sterilize the liquid and effectually rid it of all microbes. The fluid is sterilized without heating or the use of chemicals and, what is most important of all, without the loss of any essential character of the milk.

According to a French writer
Christianity has about 477,000,000
followers, with the oriental creeds ranked next in the following order:
Confucianism and ancestor worship,
256,000,000; Hinduism, 150,000,000;
Mohammedanism, 177,000,000 and Buddhism, 147,000,000. The Christian total includes 231,000,000
Roman Catholics, 143,000,000 Pro-

HYSTERICAL PLEADING.

Downs or the electric chair.

The speech of Attorney McIntyre in behalf of Captain Hains was eloquent, dramatic, bold, daring. But when he characterized the shooting of Annis by the young military officer as "an act of God," he passed the stage. All the power and eloquence of an attorney will necessarily be used to convince the jury that his client should not be sent to the gallows or the electric chair.

It is not expected that the public change of management at Constantinople will make any difference in the price of Turkish baths. Not it is safe to say, if Aldrich can help it. He is no doubt determined to keep the tariff as high on Turkish baths as on everything else.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

There is some complaint from women because the soda fountain keepers do not set up a free lunch. A glass of soda costs as much as a glass of beer, and the beer is not gets an appetizing free lunch in front of it. This discrimination in favor of the men is very annoying to the women, and they talk of boycotting every fountain in town unless they are treated differently.

WEATHER—SHOWERS TONIGHT.

Washington, May 21.—Ohio: Showers tonight. Saturday partly cloudy.

If you have found the reason why it costs so much to live in this free land, you have solved the tariff question so far as you are personally concerned. The next step is to prove the solution by putting men in congress who will not stand for an election on a protective tariff platform.

When the Sugar Trust had to pay over two million dollars into the nation's treasury because it had been caught stealing from the government through short weight, it is said to have let out a grunt that made the hog end of the Beef Trust more envious than it ever was before.

Common sign in Cincinnati: "Let us send a gallon of our best whisky
to that dry town of yours."
Some of these days, and not so far away either, signs like that will not be seen in Cox's town.

Nicholas Murray Butler told the Mohonk peace delegates "the world was staggering toward bankruptcy." Please, Mr. Butler hold it off until after June second, which is "Coming Soon."

With special and favored interests controlling congress, and congress
drawing up the bill of the bargain
with the Philippines, what chance
does the Filipino stand?

Answer: Just as much as the natives in the United States have had in their contention with congress and the special interests.

Fish biting good where there are fish to bite.

The "block" signal is showing danger.

What of Mohonk Lake and the Hague? It is only four years since the first Dreadnaught was designed,
and in spite of the many annual peace conferences, the naval armament has increased during those four years until today there are now seventy of its like either built or being built. Should there come a war
in which arbitration fails and decision on the high seas takes place, great Britain will have to bear the initial responsibility.

MAN'S WORTH.

The courts have developed that you don't have to die to beat one game
and that is personal injury.

After listening to long and learned arguments, after reading voluminous decisions, charging juries, and entering up finding the following is a fair compensation for a man destroyed by piece meal:

Injury.	Amount Awarded.
Head	$ 18,000
Eye	14,000
Hearing	6,000
Nose	320
Jaw	16,500
Shoulder	7,500
Arm	18,000
Wrist	1,350
Fingers	4,000
Hand	11,000
Side	10,000
Heart	2,000
Spine	20,000
Back	15,000
Rib	10,000
Hip	15,000
Thigh	10,000
Leg	30,000
Knee	6,650
Ankle	4,000
Foot	16,000
Fracture	11,000
Total	$246,230

No man is worth more than $100, one if he die all at once. No jury, in any state, can return a larger verdict for his heirs. In some states it is $5,000.

Crippled, but not killed, however,
a man may get damages aggregating $246,230 for injuries to various parts of his body, providing they do not result in death.

A live cripple is worth more than a perfect dead man.
It is cheap—nearly twenty-five times cheaper—to kill a man than to cripple him. While the law fixes a limit beyond which juries may go in awarding damages for accidental death, it fixes no limit to the amount that may be recovered for injuries
that do not result in death.

A New York court recently awarded a wife $18,000 for the loss of her husband's memory, brought about by injuries, while the loss of an eye has been assessed at $14,000 by one jury and injuries to the spine were assessed at $20,000 by another. A Texas railroad man recently proved that but for the accidental loss of an arm

he would soon have been promoted and the jury gave him $14,000. A woman who lost some time ago a hand
in a factory accident, with a Texas jury, recovered $2,100 a day, offsetting $1000 for a crushed ankle.

box also will help make the evening
one of unusual interest.

Called to Her Reward.

Death has again invaded our midst, this time laying his relentless hand upon the home of Mrs. Benjamin Bowsher, and taking from their midst a sister and daughter, Katie, aged 17 years. She was an earnest consistent christian girl, esteemed by all who knew her, and one whose circle of friends was exceptionally large.

Interment occurred at the Lutheran cemetery after the obsequies at St. Matthew's Lutheran church, conducted by Rev. Eckhardt.

"IN THE BAD LANDS" AT THE ROYAL THEATER, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY.

One of the most realistic portrayals of army life on the frontier ever produced. A surgeon of the garrison, a dope fiend as well, is in love with the Colonel's daughter, and his attention is attracted by the handsome girl. On Christmas eve, while the military ball is at its height,
the messenger gallops in the stockade with the dreadful news that the Indians are again on the warpath. The girl's sweetheart, a young lieutenant is commissioned to lead a small detachment to put down
the uprising and a most beautiful scene is the filing out of the squad in the pale moonlight on the white snow. However this snowy white is soon stained with red, for the brave troopers are led into an ambush and after leaving some of their number dead on the field, are compelled to retreat. Among the wounded is the young surgeon, and the jealous surgeon tries to poison him,
but is discovered by a negro servant.
The surgeon is turned out from the garrison and meets his death in wandering through the snow. Full of thrills and novel scenes.

THE WILY STENOGRAPHER.

The beautiful typewriter and putted out her golden pompadour revolution. "My speed'll increase. Mr.
Meer—excuse me, Wellington has speed'll increase 20 to 40 per cent
every day."

Brother Wellington frowned. The girl had taken his detraction steady.
And in a stern, skeptical voice he said, "How so?"

"It's your new vocabulary that puts me out," she explained. "I had Mr. Meer's vocabulary very pat as per," contents quoted, the same he only used about 200 words. The flattering smile warned the man like a sunbeam. "But you sit here a real literary style. 'Beg to submit our best attention,' 'submit,' 'sub-lish,' 'hypothesize,' they're all new words to me, and of course I can't rattle them off very fast at first. But just you wait, say, till day after tomorrow. Then you'll see."

"All business men have different vocabularies that their stenographers must get accustomed to," said
the broker.

"Yes, sir; some large some small."
Again her smile flattered him. "You're larger than most. I should say it was thirty or forty words larger.
Real literary, I call it."

"Miss Hoskins, if there's not any supplies you need all you've got to do is ask," said the literary broker fatuously.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

DUSKY AMAZON IS MODEST.

A colored woman of generous proportions was on the witness stand in the superior court before Judge Wood the other day and she made such a good witness for the plaintiff that the attorney for the defense planned to throw "cold water" on what she said by finding fault with her character.

"Let me see you have been arrested, haven't you?" the attorney asked on cross-examination.

"Don't care to 'seuss thaat mut-tah," she replied shortly.

"But you must answer the question," the attorney told her. "The law requires you to answer whether you care to or not."

"Well, I ain't been 'rested but once," she said reluctantly.

"Tell us what that was for?"

THE CIRCUS IS HERE BOYS, AND NONE WAS EVER BETTER

Grand Street Pageant Only Forerunner of Great Acts

THOUSANDS SAW
THIS AFTERNOON,

Under Big Top.—Evening Performance Begins at 8 O'clock.

Today is the day. Circus day. The Carl Hagenback and Great Shows give their great shows and every youngster in All county from 6 to 66 years of age
want to make them a visit.
The shows arrived early this morning and at early dawn the practiced technicians employed by this mammoth organization commenced to unload from the cars the mountains of equipment, stock, menagerie and other things and the system is so perfect
that this giant's task was completed
in about the twinkling of an eye.
Then came the quick haul to the site for and the big menagerie tent
was first erected, quickly followed by the big top and the other 17 tents all of which are necessary for the amusement of the public and the convenience of the employees.

The Parade.
Then came the call for parade and there was much hustle and bustle.
The organization knows its place and just what to do. It was all there from the gorgeously clad feminine outfits and the wonderful band ablaze
in purple and gold and green and red and drawn by eight coal black horses to the funny clown in his donkey suit fussing with the to intimate theaters who impeded his progress.
The cages were open exposing the wild animals, which looked as if you with wild eyes, eyes
just saw the light of day in some dark, close and then there was the odd dipping, ugly hippopotamus
in the banks of the Nile and scores of pretty women mounted on blooded
black stock.

In their proper places with majestic and ponderous dignity came the elephants in strange contrast with the small frightened horses by their side and the ambling camels behind.
The different wagons and characters of different performers in all the latest regalia rode in superb harmony to the common herd and all to gaze on them. The splendide grey horses minced proudly and conscious of the showing made in shining leather and gleaming brass and gold.

The four bands were stationed at the proper distances apart to produce a continued fanfare without interference and all in all the spectacle was one so reminiscent of the good old days that when it was over more than one grown man rubbed his eyes and was sorry.

According to advance press reports
the Hagenback-Wallace Shows, the ring performances are the best ever seen under canvas and the crowd at the afternoon performance was estimated at over 7,000 people. The doors to the night performance open at seven and the show starts at eight.

Sick headache, constipation and biliousness are relieved by Rings Little Liver Pills. They cleanse the system. Do not gripe. Price 25c.

DELPHOS JUNIORS

Delightfully Entertain the

A delightful event in the neigh-

the graduating class by the Juniors.
That custom here usually takes the form of what is known as the Junior Hop, but in the canal town
they had a banquet and a very pleasing program, as follows:
For the toastmistress, "A Master
with the Foils of Wit, 'Tis Natural
She Should Love a Hit"—Miss Le-

For the Seniors, "Regrets and Explanations"—Anna Juddina.
For the Juniors, "Within the

For the Faculty, "Here's Rosemary, That's for Remembrance";

For the High School, "Perhaps It
May Turn Out a Song, Perhaps Turn

SOUTH AMERICAN TRADE.

Some writers on commercial subjects assert that our merchants and manufacturers do not wish to build up trade in Spanish-American countries. It is argued that they have more business than they can attend to, or that they prefer to expand trade that has been already established in other quarters. We do not quite believe this, but it is undoubtedly true that Americans have not so far been willing to take the trouble to enter into new relations, especially when they involve a departure from our time-honored customs.

In order to sell our wares to the Central and South American republics it is necessary to adjust ourselves to their demands. In the first place we have to agree to the system of annual settlements, next we must send them the kind of goods they want, finally we must use such such packages as they require. Almost everybody from Mexico to Patagonia does business on the basis of annual settlements. This is a necessity created by their environment and cannot be changed by our dictum. The vast distance between the port of entry and the inland towns and villages, among which the goods are ultimately distributed, the dearth of rapid communication, and other causes, have conspired to fortify the custom until it has become a part of the people's life and cannot be uprooted. It is as much a custom as any other when one has grown accustomed to it, and it is idle in this day and generation to talk of any other. The small merchants cannot settle with the importers until they collect the money due them, and this is practical only when their customers have realized upon crops and produce. The annual settlement, therefore, is a permanent institution, and any trade we establish in those lands must be primarily based upon it.—New York Sun.

THE CHEERFUL DEACON.

Former Governor Glenn of North Carolina tells this story, apropos of President Taft's boast of the "possum to fame":

Three colored brethren, happening to meet at a crossroads one day, fell into a discussion. Elder Jackson stated that in his opinion the country was going to the dogs, therefore he allowed he was a pessimist.

Elder Hightower, combating this view, seeing that the park was about over and the price of cotton was on the rise. He declared himself a firm optimist.

When Deacon Powell was called on for his opinion, he scratched his head reflectively for a moment, and said: "Well, brother, 'nuff 'nuff to me dat sumbuns is bout rine now, 'nuff 'nuff 'spects I am a pessimist!"

BROADLY SPEAKING

Attorneys for Labor Leaders Will Endeavor to Prove THAT CHICAGO
EMPLOYERS ARE Plotting to Bring About the Overthrow of Union Labor.

Chicago, May 21.—Attorneys Jennings and Brady today began the introduction of testimony for the defense in the trial of Arthur H. Madson, F. A. Poucher and M. J. Hoyle, labor leaders, charged with extortion in calling and settling strikes.

States Attorney Wayman finished the presentation of direct evidence for the state yesterday. Mr. Brady's first act today was to request that the prosecution indicate what particular counts of the indictment it would not before the jury. Judge McFurley overruled. The usual motion to take the case from the jury and acquit the defendants on the grounds that no case had been made against the accused met a similar fate.

Broadly speaking, the defense, it is said, will attempt to show that the Chicago Employers' association desiring to break labor unionization is behind the movement.

Chamberlain's Liniment.

This is a new preparation and a good one. It is especially valuable as a cure for chronic and muscular rheumatism, and for the relief from pain which it affords in acute inflammatory rheumatism. Those who have used it have invariably spoken of it in the highest terms of praise. Lame back, lame shoulder and stiff neck are due to rheumatism of the muscles, usually brought on by exposure to cold or damp, and are quickly cured by applying this liniment freely and massaging the affected parts. Soreness of the muscles, whether induced by violent exercise or injury, is allaying by this liniment. For sale by all druggists.

A SQUELCHER FOR SNORERS.

Mrs. William Ellis Corey was describing at a luncheon at the Plaza, the Paris school where, with the help of Isadora Duncan and Jean De Reszke, she trains little children for the stage.

"I think such work," said Mrs. Corey, "is better than a life of mere social frivolity. American society, you know, even the best of it, is so apt to be snobbish. So often, after listening to the twaddle at a tea or a reception, I feel like getting up to go with old Omar Fitzgerald's remark:

"Fitzgerald, the translator of the Rubaiyat, called one night at a house where a very snobbish conversation was going on. He sat an hour in an uncomfortable silence. He wanted to talk about poetry and music, plays and pictures, but instead he had to listen to snobbish boasting about what the duke had said, and the baron had answered, and how gracious the princess had been.

"Finally Fitzgerald rose to go. He shook hands with his hostess, and then he turned to the assembled guests and said sadly, shaking his head:

"I once knew a lord, too; but he's dead."—Rochester Herald.

Whoooping Cough.
This is a more dangerous disease than is generally presumed. It will be a surprise to many to learn that more deaths result from it than from scarlet fever. Pneumonia often results from it. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has been used in many epidemics of whooping cough, and always with the best results. Delbert McKelg, of Harlan, Iowa, says of it: "My boy took whooping cough when nine months old. He had it in the winter. I got a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy which proved good. I cannot recommend it too highly." For sale by all druggists.

THE HAINS CONVICTION.
The conviction of Captain Hains is a hard blow for the unwritten law. It does much to wipe away the disagreeable impression created by the acquittal of his brother and by the verdict of insanity in the case of Thaw, in both of which there was some doubt whether the jury had taken the unwritten law into consideration or not. But the trial just closed was one for the unwritten law, if there ever was one. Any other verdict than guilty in this case would have done incalculable harm. Not merely would it have prompted others in like circumstances to take the law into their own hands, as Hains very likely was prompted by the belief that Thaw's escape from a severe penalty was due to public condonation of killing in a certain sort of cases, but a failure to secure a conviction would certainly have demoralized the public and made convictions in cases where the unwritten law is pleaded increasingly difficult. And the Hains jury has done a good deal at a time when it was very much needed to establish the right sort of settling their domestic difficulties with a pistol, and it will deter jurors from listening sympathetically to counsel for the defense smelting about the vengeance of God and the unwritten law. PUTTING OUT BREAKFAST.
A new food reformer comes out with the statement that the way to avoid eating too much is to go without breakfast. He truly says that two meals a day are enough for the man not engaged in hard physical labor and he proposes to dispense with breakfast.

This looks like beginning at the wrong end. If the evening meal is at six, this would leave the body eighteen hours without food and put all the eating into six. This is crowding the stomach. Most persons can get along comfortably with little or no luncheon. In the middle of the day when the mind is actively engaged it is not desirable to turn the flow of blood to the brain back to the stomach. If eating luncheon is a confirmed habit the meal can be made very light.

Almost all of the food reformers insist that we eat too much. What they really mean is that we eat too much of the wrong sort of food. It is astonishing that so important a matter is given so little attention. It is pretty well known that there are three basic forms of food which are essential to proper nutrition and they should be consumed in certain proportions. But the crucial fact is that the housewife knows as little of this as of the chemistry of cooking. There are some persons who require large amounts of food, but not a great deal of nutrition. The indications are that much of the food we eat is useless for purposes of nutrition, but that the alimentary system is used to certain amounts of material to work upon, which cannot be reduced without distress.

It is not impossible to eat just the sort of food that is best for us, but it is improbable that we shall ever get to that basis. So long as people have appetites they are likely to ponder to that extent according to individual notions. What we really need is more food that is nutritive, while the amount that we consume which is of little value is seldom harmless in any respect. The trouble is that our appetites are not always normal and that we do not seek the scientific remedy. Philadelphia Inquirer.

HE SAT ON THEM.
President Taft administered a tremendous shock to some of the "citizens" of Washington last Saturday night. Suffrage for the district has long been a dream of academic gentlemen in Washington who look at things through remote, scholastic glasses, and of non-academic gentlemen who, having nothing in particular to do in connection with any legitimate object of the chamber of commerce or the board of trade, figure a condition under which they may become great political leaders with all the power and privilege involved. Probably it was not beyond the ken of the president of the United States should lose his temper at what had been widely advertised as a love feast, and maybe he didn't do exactly that, but the way he riddled, flouted and stamped upon the plea for district suffrage exposed its feebleness and denounced its futilities "to the queen's taste." He addressed himself to high and essential things and showed that Washington, the capital of the nation and in fact a mere federal reservation, should never be surrendered to the mutations and caprices of a local electorate with nothing at stake and no inspiration to patriotic action. Mr. Taft made his speech—quite unprepared, by the way—and we shall probably hear no more of district suffrage agitation during his term in office.—New York Sun.

BRIGHTEST BOY IN WORLD.
(Boston Cor New York Times.)
A lad who has been termed the brightest boy in the world will graduate next month from Tufts College. His name is Norbert Wiener, and he is the son of Prof. Leo Wiener, of Harvard University.

This remarkable boy was born in Columbia, Mo., November 24, 1894. He will graduate in his fourteenth year, having completed the regular four-year course in three years, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts and covering work equal to the amount usually completed by a candidate for degree of Doctor of Philosophy. Needless to say, he is the first student of 14 to be graduated from Tufts.

Norbert Wiener at the age of 8 was fitted for college in mathematics, philosophy and modern languages. Three years prepared him for college entry. When he entered Tufts in 1906 he had gone farther in chemistry and philosophy than the average senior.

He resides with his father and mother at 11 Bellevue street, Medford, Mass., at the foot of Tufts College hill.

Aside from the fact that Norbert Wiener's capacity for learning is phenomenal, he is as other boys. He is tall, of Russian descent on his father's side, a good tennis player, and a splendid swimmer. His interests, eyes are the most striking feature.

This autumn he will enter Harvard Graduate School to take a course in higher mathematics, his favorite study, and supplementing the doctor's degree at 17, he will spend two or three years in France and Germany, devoting himself to philosophy. Thus, at an age when the average boy has still two years' work ahead for his bachelor's degree, young Wiener will be doing advanced work among men three times his age in a German university.

There is encouragement in the fact that a wave of conviction seems to be sweeping the juries of the courts. They are declining to be sidetracked by female attractions, answering laws and the hair lines drawn between passion and duty.—Detroit Free Press.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.
(Late.)
Chew your thoughts well before swallowing them. Mental indigestion, with all its train of attendant troubles, is due to this one fact more than anything else. Bolting thoughts cause more trouble than you have any conception of.

Chew every thought at least 12 times, or until there is practically nothing left of it. You will find so doing that you get along with fewer thoughts than you deem possible.

Have the thought that you have been trying to assimilate, chew it over in your mind. If it is a new one, chew it over in your mind. If it is a new one, chew it over in your mind. If it is a new one, chew it over in your mind.

As for your daily diet, that should be largely on your heredity and environment. If you had the notion of a Harlan point, for example, you might feed on a Presidential address and get away with it. If you are taken down, however, by a long course of newspapers, your mind might wobble at the slightest attempt at sanity.

Avoid too many light lunches. Also those that are highly spiced. In the morning take a heavy breakfast, together with a half page or so of some standard paper. Absorb slowly.

At noon avoid all stock reports. Read carefully the advertisement of some good magazine. It is very working.

SEA LEVEL OR LOCK?
The battle of the levels has been in progress ever since this government undertook the gigantic task of digging the Panama ditch. The battle has been waged between the advocates of locks and of sea level locks in congress and in the press, but popular and technical with such beneficence that the public has received stronger impressions of the controversial ability of the antagonists than of the worth of their arguments.

Without presuming to take sides in the controversy, it may give the aid toward obtaining some notion of how complicated a question it is to consider it from the standpoint of the man who is to use the canal when it is finished. In 1915, according to the latest projections, the canal will be about 50 miles long. In the sea level plan two-fifths of this would be made up of sinuous curves; in the lock plan, now being followed, one-seventh would be curves, mostly the turns from one straight section to another. In the sea level plan the bottom would be 150 feet. In the lock plan the bottom would be 200 feet for eight miles, and 22 for 22 miles and from 200 to 220 feet for the 20 miles across Lake Gatun. The difference in the difficulties of navigation will be perceived by any ship master.

When the antagonists in the wordy warfare present such plain, logical arguments as these and abandon unconvincing generalities and technicalities, the average man will find a much better idea of the merits of the case. Boston Globe.

PUTTING OUT BREAKFAST.
A new food reformer comes out with the statement that the way to avoid eating too much is to go without breakfast. He truly says that two meals a day are enough for the man not engaged in hard physical labor and he proposes to dispense with breakfast.

This looks like beginning at the wrong end. If the evening meal is at six, this would leave the body eighteen hours without food and put all the eating into six. This is crowding the stomach. Most persons can get along comfortably with little or no luncheon. In the middle of the day when the mind is actively engaged it is not desirable to turn the flow of blood to the brain back to the stomach. If eating luncheon is a confirmed habit the meal can be made very light.

Almost all of the food reformers insist that we eat too much. What they really mean is that we eat too much of the wrong sort of food. It is astonishing that so important a matter is given so little attention. It is pretty well known that there are three basic forms of food which are essential to proper nutrition and they should be consumed in certain proportions. But the crucial fact is that the housewife knows as little of this as of the chemistry of cooking. There are some persons who require large amounts of food, but not a great deal of nutrition. The indications are that much of the food we eat is useless for purposes of nutrition, but that the alimentary system is used to certain amounts of material to work upon, which cannot be reduced without distress.

It is not impossible to eat just the sort of food that is best for us, but it is improbable that we shall ever get to that basis. So long as people have appetites they are likely to ponder to that extent according to individual notions. What we really need is more food that is nutritive, while the amount that we consume which is of little value is seldom harmless in any respect. The trouble is that our appetites are not always normal and that we do not seek the scientific remedy. Philadelphia Inquirer.

HE SAT ON THEM.
President Taft administered a tremendous shock to some of the "citizens" of Washington last Saturday night. Suffrage for the district has long been a dream of academic gentlemen in Washington who look at things through remote, scholastic glasses, and of non-academic gentlemen who, having nothing in particular to do in connection with any legitimate object of the chamber of commerce or the board of trade, figure a condition under which they may become great political leaders with all the power and privilege involved. Probably it was not beyond the ken of the president of the United States should lose his temper at what had been widely advertised as a love feast, and maybe he didn't do exactly that, but the way he riddled, flouted and stamped upon the plea for district suffrage exposed its feebleness and denounced its futilities "to the queen's taste." He addressed himself to high and essential things and showed that Washington, the capital of the nation and in fact a mere federal reservation, should never be surrendered to the mutations and caprices of a local electorate with nothing at stake and no inspiration to patriotic action. Mr. Taft made his speech—quite unprepared, by the way—and we shall probably hear no more of district suffrage agitation during his term in office.—New York Sun.

BRIGHTEST BOY IN WORLD.
(Boston Cor New York Times.)
A lad who has been termed the brightest boy in the world will graduate next month from Tufts College. His name is Norbert Wiener, and he is the son of Prof. Leo Wiener, of Harvard University.

This remarkable boy was born in Columbia, Mo., November 24, 1894. He will graduate in his fourteenth year, having completed the regular four-year course in three years, receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts and covering work equal to the amount usually completed by a candidate for degree of Doctor of Philosophy. Needless to say, he is the first student of 14 to be graduated from Tufts.

Norbert Wiener at the age of 8 was fitted for college in mathematics, philosophy and modern languages. Three years prepared him for college entry. When he entered Tufts in 1906 he had gone farther in chemistry and philosophy than the average senior.

He resides with his father and mother at 11 Bellevue street, Medford, Mass., at the foot of Tufts College hill.

Aside from the fact that Norbert Wiener's capacity for learning is phenomenal, he is as other boys. He is tall, of Russian descent on his father's side, a good tennis player, and a splendid swimmer. His interests, eyes are the most striking feature.

This autumn he will enter Harvard Graduate School to take a course in higher mathematics, his favorite study, and supplementing the doctor's degree at 17, he will spend two or three years in France and Germany, devoting himself to philosophy. Thus, at an age when the average boy has still two years' work ahead for his bachelor's degree, young Wiener will be doing advanced work among men three times his age in a German university.

There is encouragement in the fact that a wave of conviction seems to be sweeping the juries of the courts. They are declining to be sidetracked by female attractions, answering laws and the hair lines drawn between passion and duty.—Detroit Free Press.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT.
(Late.)
Chew your thoughts well before swallowing them. Mental indigestion, with all its train of attendant troubles, is due to this one fact more than anything else. Bolting thoughts cause more trouble than you have any conception of.

Chew every thought at least 12 times, or until there is practically nothing left of it. You will find so doing that you get along with fewer thoughts than you deem possible.

Have the thought that you have been trying to assimilate, chew it over in your mind. If it is a new one, chew it over in your mind. If it is a new one, chew it over in your mind.

As for your daily diet, that should be largely on your heredity and environment. If you had the notion of a Harlan point, for example, you might feed on a Presidential address and get away with it. If you are taken down, however, by a long course of newspapers, your mind might wobble at the slightest attempt at sanity.

Avoid too many light lunches. Also those that are highly spiced. In the morning take a heavy breakfast, together with a half page or so of some standard paper. Absorb slowly.

At noon avoid all stock reports. Read carefully the advertisement of some good magazine. It is very working.

Received Word of Death of William Blair.

Mrs. George Bishop, who resides at the corner of Reese avenue and Second street, received a telegram last night, apprising her of the death of her brother-in-law, William Blair, a former Limaiter. Mr. Blair was at one time enrolled among the police of this city and was a well known resident at that time. With his family he left here just a little over a year ago, and went to Indianapolis, where his death occurred.

Though Mr. Blair had been in ill health for several years, he met with a bad fall last Saturday which hastened his demise. A number of relatives reside here and in addition to Mrs. Bishop, Grant Long, of the C. H. & D. and Charles Young, employed by the C. & E. are both brothers-in-law of the dead man.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at Perry Chapel, but no further word has been received.

here as to the time the remains will arrive in this city. They will, however, be taken to the home of Mrs. Bishop.

STRUCK BY CAR

But Fortunately Escaped Uninjured.

About 10:45 o'clock this morning an auto bound Market street car crossed Union street, Meli Botkins, who lives on the Calvin farm in Perry township, stepped on the track and was thrown fully twenty feet. He was stunned and was carried into the Eagle cafe. Within a half hour he had recovered and could not discover any injury other than a good shaking up. It was evident from the nature of the accident that Botkins did not hear the car, and his manner was such that the motorman thought he was aware of the approaching car.
